The first step is to ensure that the mouse is properly connected to the computer. Check the connection and make sure the mouse is plugged into the correct port.

The next step is to check the battery level. If the battery is low, it may cause the mouse to stop working.

Another common issue is the mouse button not working. This can be caused by a stuck button or a problem with the mouse's internal components.

If the mouse is still not working, you may need to try a different mouse or contact the manufacturer for support.
