Judicial Process

The judicial process begins with a case being filed in a court. The case then moves through various stages, including discovery, trial, and appeal. The Supreme Court is the final stage of the process. It hears cases that involve federal law and the Constitution.

The Supreme Court's decisions are binding on all lower courts. This means that once the Supreme Court has ruled on a case, all other courts must follow that ruling. This is how the Supreme Court ensures that the law is applied consistently across the country.
