Viktor Frankl's theory of self transcendence provides a promising framework for research and intervention on how to achieve resilience, wellbeing, and happiness through overcoming suffering and self transcendence. The existential positive psychology of suffering complements the positive psychology of happiness, which is championed by Martin Seligman, as two equal halves of the circle of wellbeing and optimal mental health. This Research Topic aims to examine the different approaches to Positive Psychology and their influence on individual wellbeing during the COVID-19 era. One of the exciting developments in the positive psychology of wellbeing is the mounting research on the adaptive benefits of negative emotions such as shame, guilt, and anger, as well as the dialectical process of balancing negative and positive emotions. As an example based on all the empirical research and Frankl's self transcendence model, Wong has developed the existential positive psychology of suffering (PP2.0) as the foundation for flourishing. Here are a few main tenets of PP2.0: 1. Life is suffering and a constant struggle throughout every stage of development. 2. The search for self transcendence is a primary motive guided by the meaning mindset and mindful mindset. 3. Wellbeing cannot be sustainable without overcoming and transforming suffering. In this Research Topic, we welcome diverse approaches discussing the following points: The dialectic process of overcoming the challenges of every stage of development as necessary for personal growth and self transcendence; The role of self transcendence in resilience, virtue, meaning, and happiness; The upside of negative emotions; The new science of resilience based on cultivating the resilient mindset and character; How to make the best use of suffering to achieve our potentials; mental health.
