The Flow of Energy

All organisms and abiotic components within the biosphere depend on the flow of energy within an ecosystem. At a very fundamental level, the energy source for living organisms is the sun. Energy flows from the sun through producers to consumers and through various trophic levels.

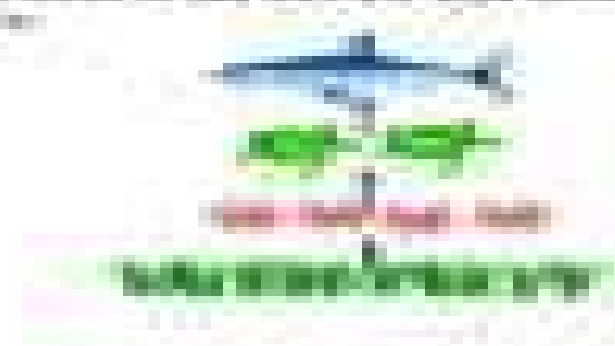

Energy Flow

Energy flows from producers to consumers.

Energy flows from the sun to producers and then to consumers. Energy is lost at each step of the flow. Energy is lost as heat and through respiration. Energy is also lost through excretion. Energy is lost through the death of organisms and the decomposition of their remains.

The flow of energy is a one-way process. Energy enters the ecosystem from the sun and flows through the organisms. Energy is lost at each step of the flow. Energy is lost as heat and through respiration. Energy is also lost through excretion. Energy is lost through the death of organisms and the decomposition of their remains.
