Losing In Vegas:

Sexperiment Ed Young, Lisa Young, 2012-01-10 The predominant message in our culture is that it's okay to have sex whenever wherever and however we want Sex has become just sex But while society has taken sex too far the church hasn't taken it far enough God wants couples to make love in marriage with passion with purpose and with pleasure Marriages aren't experiencing all the benefits that come from a healthy sex life Couples are facing a barrage of influences that keep them from connecting with each other regularly the kids the career the house the errands etc SEXPERIMENT shows people that sex in marriage is more than just sex and it's more than a chore The Youngs believe it's time to get back to understanding the context of sex in marriage and that it's time for couples to break the barriers keeping them from a healthy sexual relationship Couples ought to experience the benefits of having sex regularly intentionally and creatively SEXPERIMENT will allow couples to discover that the intersection of God and sex can lead to a life punctuated by exclamation marks What I Learned Losing a Million Dollars Jim Paul, Brendan Moynihan, 2013-05-21 Jim Paul's meteoric rise took him from a small town in Northern Kentucky to governor of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange yet he lost it all his fortune his reputation and his job in one fatal attack of excessive economic hubris In this honest frank analysis Paul and Brendan Moynihan revisit the events that led to Paul's disastrous decision and examine the psychological factors behind bad financial practices in several economic sectors This book winner of a 2014 Axiom Business Book award gold medal begins with the unbroken string of successes that helped Paul achieve a jet setting lifestyle and land a key spot with the Chicago Mercantile Exchange It then describes the circumstances leading up to Paul's 1.6 million loss and the essential lessons he learned from it primarily that although there are as many ways to make money in the markets as there are people participating in them all losses come from the same few sources Investors lose money in the markets either because of errors in their analysis or because of psychological barriers preventing the application of analysis While all analytical methods have some validity and make allowances for instances in which they do not work psychological factors can keep an investor in a losing position causing him to abandon one method for another in order to rationalize the decisions already made Paul and Moynihan's cautionary tale includes strategies for avoiding loss tied to a simple framework for understanding accepting and dodging the dangers of investing trading and speculating The Promiscuous Traveler Sebastian Venable, 2012-11-28 It's every gay man's fantasy to travel the globe in search of sex One lucky travel writer has done just that and here he chronicles his diverse encounters while on the road from a man in wet Speedos on a Puerto Rican beach to a uniformed Russian train conductor from a lonely boy in a Senegalese village to a naked and smiling Aboriginal in an Australian frontier town What he finds are the raw universal physical needs of men beyond the bounds of race or identity and the fleeting and intangible nature of sex itself A Season Under Fire Sherman Holmes, 2010-07-28 Material Noise Anne M. Royston, 2019-09-17 An argument that theoretical works can signify through their materiality their noise or such nonsemantic elements as typography as well as their semantic content In Material Noise Anne Royston argues that theoretical works signify through their materiality such nonsemantic elements as typography or color as well as their semantic content Examining works by Jacques Derrida Avital Ronell Georges Bataille and other well known theorists Royston considers their materiality and design which she terms noise as integral to their meaning In other words she reads these theoretical works as complex assemblages just as she would read an artist's book in all its idiosyncratic tangibility Royston explores the formlessness and heterogeneity of the Encyclopedia Da Costa which published works by Bataille Andr Breton and others the use of layout and white space in Derrida's Glas the typographic illegibility static and interference in Ronell's The Telephone Book and the enticing surfaces of Mark C Taylor's Hiding its digital counterpart The Real Las Vegas NV and Shelley Jackson's Skin Royston then extends her analysis to other genres examining two recent artists' books that express explicit theoretical concerns Johanna Drucker's Stochastic Poetics and Susan Howe's Tom Tit Tot Throughout Royston develops the concept of artistic arguments which employ signification that exceeds the semantics of a printed text and are not reducible to a series of linear logical propositions Artistic arguments foreground their materiality and reflect on the media that create them Moreover Royston argues each artistic argument anticipates some aspect of digital thinking speaking directly to such contemporary concerns as hypertext communication theory networks and digital distribution

The Autobiography of the Maha Yogi Alfred Schmielewski, Yogi A.S. Narayana, What the man of illumination sees when he looks at this world through the eyes of God is what French philosopher and author Jean Paul Satre Implied in his famous play No Exit The man of illumination sees Hell a Hell created by man's Inhuman greed for power and money He sees a world society that can only survive by devouring human beings a society that tolerates financial and political cannibalism

Stock Analysis in the Twenty-First Century and Beyond Thomas E.

Berghage, 2014-07-30 Stock Analysis in the Twenty First Century and Beyond For years financial analysts have struggled with the fact that practically all the financial measures used to analyze corporate performance lack predictive power when it comes to forecasting the market performance of the company's stock Numerous academic studies have documented and reported this lack of predictability Correlation coefficients close to zero have been reported for the relationship between stock market performance and such critical financial measures as earnings growth sales growth price earnings ratio return on equity intrinsic value models based on discounted cash flow or dividends and many more It is this disconnect between traditional financial measures and the performance of stocks in the marketplace that has led to the now famous efficient market hypothesis the cornerstone of modern portfolio theory To accept the idea that the future performance of stocks is unpredictable is to say that nothing a company does will affect the future performance of its stock in the market and that is absurd It would be more accurate to say that everything a company does will affect the future performance of its stock in the market The problem with this statement is that it makes the forecasting of future stock performance so complex that it removes it from the realm of human solution Confident in the belief that something other than chance and irrational investors determine future stock prices several research groups around the world have started exploring the use of intelligent computer programs programs that self organize based on environmental feedback Early results are very promising and have provided a glimpse of the economic forces described by Adam Smith as the invisible hand that guides economic activity Stock Analysis in the Twenty First Century and Beyond describes the stock analysis problem and explores one of the more successful efforts to harness the new intelligent computer technology Many people mistakenly classify Artificially Intelligent AI computer systems as a form of quantitative analysis There are two distinct differences between advanced AI systems and traditional quantitative analysis They are 1 who makes up the selection rules and weighting and 2 what information is used to discriminate between good and poor performing securities In most quantitative systems even in an advanced expert system form humans make up the investment rules and mathematically derive the weightings associated with the rules Computer systems that depend on outside human intelligence to program their actions are not inherently intelligent In advanced AI systems the computer makes up its own rules and weightings The computer learns from examples of good and poor performing stocks and determines its own ways for discriminating between them The procedures that are derived by the computer are often so complex that they defy human understanding In addition to making up its own rules advanced AI systems look at corporate financial data differently Just like in the human brain where information is not stored in the brain cells but rather in the connections and relationships between cells so too is corporate performance information stored in the relationships between financial numbers Assessing the performance of companies is not so much in the numbers as it is in the connections between the numbers Financial analysts recognized this early on and have used first order relational information in the form of financial ratios for many years price book debt equity current assets current liabilities price earnings etc Now with advanced AI systems we are finally able to look at and evaluate high order interrelationships in financial data that have been far too complex to analyze with less sophisticated systems These then are the fundamental differences between what has been used in the past and what will be used in the future Cdr Thomas E Berghage
