Most educators intuitively understand the critical relationship between thinking and writing: writing allows us to express what we think, but the very act of writing spurs a process of exploration that changes our thinking and helps us learn. Teaching Writing in the Content Areas examines nearly 30 years of research to identify how teachers can incorporate writing instruction that helps students master the course content and improve their overall achievement. Building on the recommendations of the National Commission on Writing, authors Vicki Urquhart and Monette McIver introduce four critical issues teachers should address when they include writing in their content courses: Creating a positive environment for the feedback and guidance students need at various stages, including prewriting, drafting, revising, and editing; Monitoring and assessing how much students are learning through their writing Choosing computer programs that best enhance the writing process Strengthening their knowledge of course content and their own writing skills The authors also provide 35 classroom strategies practices and handouts that teachers can easily implement in most subject areas or grade levels From prewriting guides and work sheets to instructional guidance and analysis the strategies offer realistic options to help teachers tailor writing assignments and instruction to the needs of each class Teaching Writing in the Content Areas is more than a primer for teaching the mechanics of writing it is a research based guide to regularly engaging students in writing that pushes them to express themselves clearly to explore new ideas and to become critical thinkers

The Perfect Norm Sandra Vavra, Sharon L. Spencer, 2009-02-01 Our goal in writing this book was to validate teachers for strong efforts in their life's work We often observe teachers' frustrations with what they perceive to be a multitude of different hot topics in education that they must attend to now but which they expect to come and go like the last hot topics So we wanted to help readers see similarities between many of these hot topics differentiation multiple intelligences culturally responsive teaching brain friendly strategies authentic assessment and ethical classroom management which we feel are not flashes in the pan And we trust that serious practitioners will not oversimplify the findings of neuroscientists and their application to education Reading studies and books by scientists a number of which are user friendly can help ensure that teachers separate the hype from credible information We have seen this professionally judicious approach in the work of graduate students Kolinski 2007 in adopting brain friendly strategies We have intentionally packed both theoretical research based and practical information in this book because professional educators want to know why they should use certain approaches models and strategies In turn as professionals we should be able to explain why we teach the way we do not to justify but to educate others about our knowledge based reflective decision making processes and the impact on student learning Thus it is important to read Chapter 1 because it lays a foundation Each succeeding chapter 2-6 has unique and compelling twists and turns chock full of ideas to use or to adapt It is possible to gain lots of ideas processes and strategies from reading and implementing or adapting even one of the unit chapters or a part of it While some of the units are explicitly about literacy others focus on content using reading writing speaking and listening as critical in the learning process Thus literacy skills are reinforced and strengthened Additionally some of our colleagues and public school partners have given us feedback that they wanted to implement some of the units and activities themselves So feel free to use this book for self exploration and professional development
