Regulation of Membrane Na⁺-K⁺ ATPase Sajal Chakraborti, Naranjan S Dhalla, 2015-12-16

Na K ATPase or Na pump ATPase a member of P type ATPase superfamily is characterized by association of multiple isoforms mainly of α and β subunits At present four different α 1 2 3 and 4 and three β 1 2 and 3 isoforms have been identified in mammalian cells and their differential expressions are tissue specific Regulation of Na K ATPase activity is an important but a complex process which involves short term and long term mechanisms Short term regulation of Na K ATPase is either mediated by changes in intracellular Na concentrations that directly affect the Na pump activity or by phosphorylation dephosphorylation mediated by some stimulants leading to changes in its expression and transport properties On the other hand long term regulation of Na K ATPase is mediated by hormones such as mineralocorticoids and thyroid hormones which cause changes in the transcription of genes of α and β subunits leading to an increased expression in the level of Na pump Several studies have revealed a relatively new type of regulation that involves the association of small single span membrane proteins with this enzyme These proteins belong to the FXYD family the members of which share a common signature sequence encompassing the transmembrane domain adjacent to the α isoforms of subunits of Na K ATPase Considering the extraordinary importance of Na K ATPase in cellular function several internationally established investigators have contributed their articles in the monograph entitled Regulation of Membrane Na K ATPase for inspiring young scientists and graduate students to enrich their knowledge on the enzyme and we are sure that this book will soon be considered as a comprehensive scientific literature in the area of Na K ATPase regulation in health and disease
