

How to Tell if Your Vehicle's Clutch Needs Replacing

Although those with automatic vehicles may not be as familiar with the general wear-and-tear and warning signs of a vehicle's clutch, those that own a car with manual transmission will know exactly what the purpose of a clutch is and that it can be costly when it fails. That is why it is so important to understand the warning signs of a faulty clutch that may indicate that it needs replacing.

The first warning sign of a faulty clutch is a burning or incredibly bad smell. Of course, a burning smell may also indicate that your oil is leaking or that there is damaged wiring somewhere in the vehicle. However, if the smell has no definitive origin and is especially prominent when you've either just shifted gear or are currently shifting gears, then it could be your faulty clutch. A burning smell when shifting gears indicates that your clutch is slipping. This is a warning sign, which means that your clutch won't fail immediately, but it does mean that you should have it looked at as it is a sure indicator that your clutch will need replacing soon. This is especially true if the smell is accompanied by a rattling noise that occurs when you're not using the clutch and that intensifies when you engage the clutch.

If you've been driving your car for a while, which is highly likely if you're at the point where your clutch needs replacing, you'll generally know what the "biting point" of your clutch is. The "biting point" is where the gear engages when you let the clutch out with your foot. If you're finding that the gears only engage when you've almost let the clutch pedal out all of the way, it is a surefire sign that your clutch is on its way out completely and that you'll soon be shopping for a new one.
