In this section of Newer Scientist in the heading of Human Evolution we'll be covering the entire basis on the Human evolution and simplifying it down to an accurate and easier way to understand explanation of the Human Evolution.

I'm going to start this section off with what the term evolution means. There can be different types of definitions for evolution but the one definition, which is necessary for what we are talking about, is 'Biological evolution'. Biological evolution is defined as many or any genetic changes to a population that is inherited over several generations or over the course of their life span. A lot of these changes may have a small impact or a large impact; they may or may not be noticeable through the course of life. But whatever the change is it will be classed as an evolution of some sort.

Many people will ask "How do we know that these evolution changed the population over the course of life or what if they have been the same as we see them today" Well a way of knowing whether a species has evolved into what it is now, is by looking at the fossils. Fossils will provide lots of information about the organism that used to inhabit the earth in the past. So when the organism dies, the weather usually destroys the body. But on other occasions the body will be covered by mud that will harden over time or it will be incased by ice, which will protect the body of the organism. When scientists come to dig up the fossils of the organism the scientist will compare the organism from the past to the futures organisms and they will identify the Evolutionary changes.

ill be moving onto these pretty really interesting section of the human evolution, we will

Tauber,2013-04-17 Elie Metchnikoff 1845 1916 winner of the Nobel Prize in 1907 for his contributions to immunology was first a comparative zoologist who working in the wake of Darwin s On the Origin of Species made seminal contributions to evolutionary biology His work in comparative embryology is best known in regard to the debates with Ernst Haeckel concerning animal genealogical relationships and the theoretical origins of metazoans But independent of those polemics Metchnikoff developed his phagocytosis theory of immunity as a result of his early comparative embryology research and only in examining the full breadth of his work do we appreciate his signal originality Metchnikoff s scientific papers have remained largely untranslated into English Assembled here annotated and edited are the key evolutionary biology papers dating from Metchnikoff s earliest writings 1865 to the texts of his mature period of the 1890s which will serve as an invaluable resource for those interested in the historical development of evolutionary biology Lone Survivors Chris Stringer,2012-03-13 A top researcher proposes a controversial new theory of human evolution in a book combining the thrill of a novel with a remarkable depth of perspective Nature In this groundbreaking and engaging work of science world renowned paleoanthropologist Chris Stringer sets out a new theory of humanity s origin challenging both the multiregionalists who hold that modern humans developed from ancient ancestors in different parts of the world and his own out of Africa theory which maintains that humans emerged rapidly in one small part of Africa and then spread to replace all other humans within and outside the continent Stringer s new theory based on archeological and genetic evidence holds that distinct humans coexisted and competed across the African continent exchanging genes tools and behavioral strategies Stringer draws on analyses of old and new fossils from around the world DNA studies of Neanderthals using the full genome map and other species and recent archeological digs to unveil his new theory He shows how the most sensational recent fossil findings fit with his model and he questions previous concepts including his own of modernity and how it evolved With photographs included Lone Survivors will be the definitive account of who and what we were and will change perceptions about our origins and about what it means to be human An essential book for anyone interested in psychology sociology anthropology human evolution or the scientific process Library Journal Highlights just how many tantalizing discoveries and analytical advances have enriched the field in recent years Literary Review
