

Remember...

To achieve a fair shot, you as an animal that is running or moving should stay true to the line of sight. You should not be moving or running, and you should not be moving.

The most effective location for a turkey is in the forest and woods. The ground and water are the best locations for turkeys, and they are the best locations for turkeys.

Vital Shots

Every hunter wants to bring home the game he or she is seeking, and sometimes this can be done by following a natural amount of hunting. To achieve this, you must be able to follow the natural amount of hunting, and you must be able to follow the natural amount of hunting.

Where To Shoot

- The most effective shot is taken in an animal's vital organs—heart and lungs. In large game animals, these organs are in the chest cavity behind the front shoulder. A long shot is the most effective shot for big game.
- The aim of the vital organs shot is to hit the heart and lungs. A shot in the chest cavity is usually fatal. If the animal is hit in the chest cavity, it will have a hard time breathing, and it will have a hard time breathing.
- A shot from behind a good shoulder, the key to a chest hit is position. Hunters should have shot in the vital organs only if you do not have a chest shot in the vital organs, and you should have shot in the vital organs only if you do not have a chest shot in the vital organs.

Choosing the Proper Shot Angle

The shot angle is the angle at which the animal is standing in relation to the hunter. Knowing which angles offer the most effective—and least effective—shots is an essential part of being a responsible hunter.

Broadside

The broadside shot angle is the preferred shot angle for both hunters and both hunters for large game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear.

- Elk: The broadside position offers several excellent shots for a hunter. The first target is the shoulder and chest area. A bullet of the correct weight that is fired from a hunter's shotgun for the game will break the shoulder bone and cause the lungs to burst.
- Deer: The broadside angle offers the best shot for the largest big game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear. The most important shot is the shoulder and chest area. A bullet of the correct weight that is fired from a hunter's shotgun for the game will break the shoulder bone and cause the lungs to burst.

Quartering Away

The quartering away shot angle is when your target is facing away from you but at an angle. The animal is usually looking away from you.

- Elk: For hunters, the quartering away position offers several excellent shots for big game. The most important shot is the shoulder and chest area. A bullet of the correct weight that is fired from a hunter's shotgun for the game will break the shoulder bone and cause the lungs to burst.

The preferred shot for large game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear, is broadside.

Firing Positions

There are four standard rifle firing positions: prone, standing, sitting, and kneeling.

Prone

The prone position is the most stable of the four positions. Because it's the easiest to hold, it's the best position for maximizing the effectiveness of long-range, heavy-caliber, sniper rifles and bolt-action rifles.

Standing

With neither arm supported, this is the most difficult position for firing an accurate shot. Rather than trying to hold the barrel steady, which is impossible, try to keep movement of the barrel to a minimum as you aim at your target. A steady, natural motion will produce the best shot.

Sitting

Both arms are supported by your legs. More so than the prone position, this is the most stable position.

Kneeling

With only one arm braced, the kneeling position is less steady than the prone and sitting positions.

Safety Tip

Shooting a firearm can cause explosion and permanent hearing loss and eye damage. Always wear eye protection.

- When shooting any firearm, always wear properly fitting eye protection for target practice, use an eyepatch or eyeshield on both eyes with a high frame forehead safety shield.

When hunting, use the same eye protection as when shooting. Always wear eye protection when hunting, and always wear eye protection when hunting. Always wear eye protection when hunting, and always wear eye protection when hunting.

- Use your visible eye protection, such as shooting glasses, only high-impact lenses when shooting to protect your vision.
