Introduction & Overview

1. The Supreme Court is the highest court in the United States. It is made up of nine Justices, one Chief Justice and eight Associate Justices. The Justices are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

2. The Supreme Court has the power to review and decide on the constitutionality of laws and government actions. This power is known as judicial review.

3. The Supreme Court also has the power to hear appeals from the lower courts. This means that if a case is appealed to the Supreme Court, the Justices will review the lower court's decision and decide if it is correct.

4. The Supreme Court is an independent branch of the government. This means that it is not part of the executive or legislative branches and it is not subject to the same political pressures as those branches.

5. The Supreme Court is a powerful institution in the United States. Its decisions can have a major impact on the lives of all Americans. For example, the Court has decided on issues such as the right to privacy, the right to free speech, and the right to a fair trial.
