

THE WILDERNESS

SITUATION

On a vacation in July, you and your family have been travelling through the wilderness of western Maine in a pickup camper. In a blinding rainstorm, you made a wrong turn on the unmarked lumber road. You have wandered more than 150 miles, over a maze of lumber routes, into the wilderness. The truck has run out of gas and now you, your parents, a 10-year-old sister, a 6-year-old brother, are lost.

After a family conference, you decide it is not wise to split up. You are going to try to walk back all together. You are pretty sure that if you pace yourselves, you can probably cover about 15 miles a day. Because of the fuel shortage, there are no helicopters or jeeps patrolling the area and you have seen not other cars or houses.

The family is dressed in light weight summer clothing and wearing sneakers. Temperatures at night go down in the low 40s. It is also bug season. As you look around, you pull the following items out of the camper, some of which may be useful.

here in Washington it is illegal to bait waterfowl and bears but baiting the tourists with tall tales has been a proud Peninsula tradition since the first European arrived on our shores In a collection of fifty two columns taken from the Opinion Page of the Peninsula Daily News in Port Angeles and The Daily World in Aberdeen he provides a fascinating amusing glimpse into life on the Peninsula that includes a story about three elk hunters who learned a valuable lesson about wilderness survival a standoff between a bear and a tourist and the disturbing news that fish are getting so smart they are able to untie knots underwater with no hands all of which proves why it is never too late to panic when encountering challenges in the wilderness In addition Neal tells the story of the first salmon and why it matters today He explains the dangers of tree hugging and fishing from a sinking boat why the Skunk Cabbage should be Washington's new State Flower and why taking selfies in the outhouse is not a good idea This is the fifth book in a series by America's only Wilderness Gossip Columnist
