British Anthologies, 1899 Edward II and a Literature of Same-Sex Love Michael G. Cornelius, 2016-10-21 The narrative retellings of the life, reign and death of the English King Edward II, who reigned 1307-1327, present a unique opportunity for scholars of sexuality in the early modern era. This is because the works of authors like Christopher Marlowe, Michael Drayton, Sir Francis Hubert, Elizabeth Cary, and Richard Niccols were all inspired by the public cultural memory fashioned from Edward's same-sex love affair with Piers Gaveston. As such, each of them presents a particular representation of and a specific discourse about male-male sexual relations in the Renaissance. In other words, what these works present is a concentrated body of literature about same-sex love in the early modern era: works that openly and frankly explore the possible origins of the love, the reasons and causes for it; works that explore the ramifications of male-male romantic relationships; works that explore the sexual politics and sociocultural dynamics of same-sex romantic partnerships; and works that describe and denote same-sex love from an English Renaissance perspective. This study looks at each of the major Renaissance texts about Edward II and examines the means through which each text understands and analyzes the nature of male-male same-sex love. From Marlowe's crafting of a lover identity for Edward to Drayton's obsession with Marlowe's version of gay history, from Hubert's Augustinian construction of Edward's nature to Cary's identification with the fallen king to Niccols' inspired exemplum, what each of these works demonstrates is that the love that dare not speak its name would not be silenced at least not in the case of Edward and Gaveston. When one sees the name Edward II, one also sees his same-sex loves. The correlation has become ingrained into our public recall of history. Thus, as far as the world is concerned, Edward II was and ever will be the gay king.

Vaughan Williams Essays Robin Wells, 2017-07-05 Serious scholarship on the music of Ralph Vaughan Williams is currently enjoying a lively revival after a period of relative quiescence and is only beginning to address the enduring affection of concert audiences for his music The essays that comprise this volume extend the study of Vaughan Williams's music in new directions that will be of interest to scholars performers and listeners alike This volume contains the work of eleven North American scholars who have been recipients of the Ralph Vaughan Williams Fellowship based at the composer's own school Charterhouse which was created and has been supported by the Carthusian Trust since 1985 This wide ranging and detailed collection of essays covers the spectrum of genres in which Vaughan Williams wrote including dance symphony opera song hymnody and film music The contributors also employ a range of analytical and historical methods of investigation to illuminate aspects of Vaughan Williams's compositional techniques and influences musical literary and visual The Making of Restoration Poetry Paul Hammond, 2006 A survey of Restoration poetry from the forms in which it was disseminated to studies of important texts This book explores the complex ways in which authors publishers and readers contributed to the making of Restoration poetry The essays in Part I map some principal aspects of Restoration poetic culture how poetic canons were established through both print and manuscript how censorship operated within the manuscript transmission of erotic and politically sensitive poems the poetic functions of authorial anonymity the work of allusion and intertextual reference the translation and adaptation of classical poetry and the poetic representations of Charles II Part II turns to individual poets and charts the making of Dryden's canon the ways in which Mac Flecknoe operates through intertextual allusions the relationship of the variant texts of Marvell's To his Coy Mistress and the treatment of Rochester's canon and text by his modern editors The discussions are complemented by illustrations drawn from both printed books and manuscripts PAUL HAMMOND is Professor of Seventeenth Century Literature at the University of Leeds Love and Sex in D. H. Lawrence David Ellis, 2016-02-11 Although love and sex are central to Lawrence critics have paid surprisingly little attention to the way these two topics are treated in his work Reasons for this are suggested in the preface to this book which is written in the spirit of Wittgenstein's claim that when we are puzzled or challenged by a phenomenon we should be less concerned with seeking new knowledge than putting into order what we already know Yet those concerned by the present dip in Lawrence's reputation among academics if not the general public have to be worried by how strange and unexpected the results are when Lawrence's dealings with love and sex are followed throughout his life and career This is what this book undertakes to do describing how the tortuous developments in his relationship with Jessie Chambers are reflected in his writing his struggle against his undoubted leanings towards homosexuality the war he declared on the concept of romantic love and how after insisting on the idea of male dominance he returned although only in part to a more humane vision of relations between the sexes in the various versions of Lady Chatterley's Lover Its aim is to suggest that although Lawrence is undoubtedly a major writer his greatest achievements are not to be found where he is popularly assumed to be at his most impressive and that the authority he assumes in his last years when he lectures the young on love and sex ought to be regarded as dubious
