Structural Seismic and Civil Engineering Research Ankit Garg,Bingxiang Yuan,Yu Zhang,2023-04-12 Structural Seismic and Civil Engineering focuses on civil engineering research anti seismic technology and engineering structure These proceedings gather the most cutting edge research and achievements aiming to provide scholars and engineers with preferable research directions and engineering solutions as reference Subjects in these proceedings include Engineering Structure Materials of Civil Engineering Structural Seismic Resistance Monitoring and Testing The works in these proceedings aim to promote the development of civil engineering and earthquake engineering Thereby promoting scientific information interchange between scholars from top universities research centers and high tech enterprises working all around the world

Operational Flood Forecasting, Warning and Response for Multi-Scale Flood Risks in Developing Cities María Carolina Rogelis,2020-04-22 The aim of this book is to contribute to understanding risk knowledge and to forecasting components of early flood warning particularly in the environment of tropical high mountains in developing cities This research covers a challenge taking into account the persistent lack of data limited resources and often complex climatic hydrologic and hydraulic conditions In this research a regional method is proposed for assessing flash flood susceptibility and for identifying debris flow predisposition at the watershed scale An indication of hazard is obtained from the flash flood susceptibility analysis and continually the vulnerability and an indication of flood risk at watershed scale was obtained Based on risk analyses the research follows the modelling steps for flood forecasting development Input precipitation is addressed in the environment of complex topography commonly found in mountainous tropical areas A distributed model a semi distributed model and a lumped model were all used to simulate the discharges of a tropical high mountain basin with a p ramo upper basin Performance analysis and diagnostics were carried out in order to identify the most appropriate model for the study area for flood early warning Finally the Weather Research and Forecasting WRF model was used to explore the added value of numerical weather models for flood early warning in a p ramo area

Visuospatial Processing for Education in Health and Natural Sciences Juan C. Castro-Alonso, 2019-08-05

Visuospatial processing is key to learn and perform professionally in the domains of health and natural sciences As such there is accumulating research showing the importance of visuospatial processing for education in diverse health sciences e.g. medicine anatomy surgery and in many natural sciences e.g. biology chemistry physics geology In general visuospatial processing is treated separately as a spatial ability and b working memory with visuospatial stimuli This book attempts to link these two research perspectives and present visuospatial processing as the cognitive activity of two components of working memory mostly the visuospatial sketch pad and also the central executive which allows to perform in both spatial ability and working memory tasks Focusing on university education in the fields of health sciences and natural sciences the chapters in this book describe the abilities of mental rotation mental folding spatial working memory visual working memory among others and how different variables affect them Some of these variables thoroughly addressed in the book are sex gender visualizations interactivity cognitive load and embodiment The book concludes with a chapter presenting VAR a battery of computer based tests to measure different tasks entailing visuospatial processing With contributions by top educational psychologists from around the globe this book will be of interest to a broad array of readers across the disciplines

Natural Hazard Uncertainty Assessment Karin Riley, Peter Webley, Matthew Thompson, 2016-11-15 Uncertainties are pervasive in natural hazards and it is crucial to develop robust and meaningful approaches to characterize and communicate uncertainties to inform modeling efforts In this monograph we provide a broad cross disciplinary overview of issues relating to uncertainties faced in natural hazard and risk assessment We introduce some basic tenets of uncertainty analysis discuss issues related to communication and decision support and offer numerous examples of analyses and modeling approaches that vary by context and scope Contributors include scientists from across the full breath of the natural hazard scientific community from those in real time analysis of natural hazards to those in the research community from academia and government Key themes and highlights include Substantial breadth and depth of analysis in terms of the types of natural hazards addressed the disciplinary perspectives represented and the number of studies included Targeted application centered analyses with a focus on development and use of modeling techniques to address various sources of uncertainty Emphasis on the impacts of climate change on natural hazard processes and outcomes Recommendations for cross disciplinary and science transfer across natural hazard sciences This volume will be an excellent resource for those interested in the current work on uncertainty classification quantification and will document common and emergent research themes to allow all to learn from each other and build a more connected but still diverse and ever growing community of scientists Read an interview with the editors to find out more <https://eos.org/editors-vox-reducing-uncertainty-in-hazard-prediction>

Energy and the Wealth of Nations
Charles A.S. Hall, Kent Klitgaard, 2018-03-05 In this updated edition of a groundbreaking text concepts such as energy return on investment EROI provide powerful insights into the real balance sheets that drive our petroleum economy Hall and Klitgaard explore the relation between energy and the wealth explosion of the 20th century and the interaction of internal limits to growth found in the investment process and rising inequality with the biophysical limits posed by finite energy resources The authors focus attention on the failure of markets to recognize or efficiently allocate diminishing resources the economic consequences of peak oil the high cost and relatively low EROI of finding and exploiting new oil fields including the much ballyhooed shale plays and oil sands and whether alternative energy technologies such as wind and solar power can meet the minimum EROI requirements needed to run society as we know it For the past 150 years economics has been treated as a social science in which economies are modeled as a circular flow of income between producers and consumers In this perpetual motion of interactions between firms that produce and households that consume little or no accounting is given of the flow of energy and materials from the environment and back again In the standard economic model energy and matter are completely recycled in these transactions and economic activity is seemingly exempt from the Second Law of Thermodynamics As we enter the second half of the age of oil when energy supplies and the environmental impacts of energy production and consumption are likely to constrain economic growth this exemption should be considered illusory at best This book is an essential read for all scientists and economists who have recognized the urgent need for a more scientific empirical and unified approach to economics in an energy constrained world and serves as an ideal teaching text for the growing number of courses such as the authors own on the role of energy in society
