Educating the New Southern Woman David Gold, Catherine L Hobbs, 2013-12-19 From the end of Reconstruction through World War II a network of public colleges for white women flourished throughout the South Founded primarily as vocational colleges to educate women of modest economic means for life in the emerging new South these schools soon transformed themselves into comprehensive liberal arts industrial institutions proving so popular that they became among the largest women's colleges in the nation In this illuminating volume David Gold and Catherine L Hobbs examine rhetorical education at all eight of these colleges providing a better understanding of not only how women learned to read write and speak in American colleges but also how they used their education in their lives beyond college With a collective enrollment and impact rivaling that of the Seven Sisters the schools examined in this study Mississippi State College for Women 1884 Georgia State College for Women 1889 North Carolina College for Women 1891 Winthrop College in South Carolina 1891 Alabama College for Women 1896 Texas State College for Women 1901 Florida State College for Women 1905 and Oklahoma College for Women 1908 served as important centers of women's education in their states together educating over a hundred thousand students before World War II and contributing to an emerging professional class of women in the South After tracing the establishment and evolution of these institutions Gold and Hobbs explore education in speech arts and public speaking at the colleges and discuss writing instruction setting faculty and departmental goals and methods against larger institutional professional and cultural contexts In addition to covering the various ways the public women's colleges prepared women to succeed in available occupations the authors also consider how women's education in rhetoric and writing affected their career choices the role of race at these schools and the legacy of public women's colleges in relation to the history of women's education and contemporary challenges in the teaching of rhetoric and writing The experiences of students and educators at these institutions speak to important conversations among scholars in rhetoric education women's studies and history By examining these previously unexplored but important institutional sites Educating the New Southern Woman provides a richer and more complex history of women's rhetorical education and experiences
