The Sequence to Success Samuel R. Chand, 2020-03-10 Every one of us gets anywhere in life due to three things someone observes us forms an opinion about us and decides to give us an opportunity or not Likewise we do the same thing with others People have played this essential role in our lives and we play it in the lives of those around us and no matter how skilled we've become we can play it even better The sequence applies in business the church marriages parenting and friendships We often assess others in the blink of an eye We instinctively notice the look on someone's face the tone of voice or the body language that's consistent or different from the words being spoken We react to our observation but we seldom stop to analyze before we respond it just happens and it happens immediately we observe and have an opinion and based on what we've determined in that second we either give the person an opportunity to engage with us or we close the door and remain guarded
