- 1) Threaten (but do not actually threaten) your opponent of something different from the single factor that is currently being threatened. (Make the other side fear something other than the outcome in question.)
*Example: The original ultimatum and punishment/monitoring is the only safe way to protect your individual interest (your future happiness) from this.
- 2) Threaten with something different or something not on the table or top of the options.
*Example: I will remove your threat or withdraw from the table or withdraw from the situation.
- 3) Make this point relevant to the situation of your needs, open up the other's freedom in the options presented up to the other's group of his interests.
- 4) Make your partner or your opponent aware of the other's free will, conscience or ego (i.e., ability to be affected, ability to change, free association of thinking, free will, free choice, free decision, free thinking, free choice, free decision).
- 5) Argue with your partner, emphasizing the full value of the commitment to the full group. (The "I" is not the only factor in the decision. A good idea is to make the other side aware of the full value of the commitment to the full group.)

Abstract

Abstract

Big data does not comprise just raw data. It's also the tools and techniques required to store, analyze and act on the data. It's the process of turning data into information. It's the ability to extract value from the data. It's the ability to make sense of the data. It's the ability to use the data to make decisions. It's the ability to use the data to create value. It's the ability to use the data to improve the world.

Abstract | The authors examined the effects of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised exercise program on the health-related quality of life (HRQL) of patients with heart failure (HF). The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The study population consisted of 100 patients with HF who were randomly assigned to either a supervised exercise program or a control group. The exercise program consisted of 12 weeks of low-intensity, supervised exercise. The control group received standard care. The primary outcome was the change in HRQL, measured using the EuroQOL-5D questionnaire. The secondary outcome was the change in clinical outcomes, including mortality and hospitalization. The results showed that the exercise program significantly improved HRQL compared to the control group. There was no significant difference in clinical outcomes between the two groups.
