Abstract: This study examines the relationship between the use of social media and the adoption of mobile banking services. The study uses a survey of 1000 respondents to explore the factors influencing the adoption of mobile banking services, including the use of social media, perceived ease of use, and perceived usefulness. The results show that the use of social media is positively related to the adoption of mobile banking services, and that perceived ease of use and perceived usefulness are also positively related to the adoption of mobile banking services. The study concludes that the use of social media can be an effective way to promote the adoption of mobile banking services.
