Energy comes in many forms and can be transferred from one form to another. It can be stored in a battery, in a fuel tank, or in a food item. It can be used to do work, such as moving a car, heating a house, or growing a plant. Energy is always conserved, meaning it cannot be created or destroyed.

Energy can be transferred from one object to another, or it can be transformed from one form to another. For example, a battery can transfer energy to a light bulb, or a car can transform chemical energy from gasoline into mechanical energy to move forward.

Here are some other examples of energy transformations:

Input	Output	Energy Transformation
Electrical Energy	Light Energy	Incandescent Light Bulb
Mechanical Energy	Thermal Energy	Friction
