Reading such articles can be tedious and sometimes frustrating unle are familiar with scientific writing and the reasons for this style. Research articles are hi structured to make information easy to find. Unlike literary writing, scientific writing er quantifiable information; as a result, the writing is very lean and extra words are avoide

A research article has the following major sections: Title Page, Abstract, Introductions, Method, Results, Discussion, References, Tables and Figures. An article summary high the information in the Introduction, Methods, Results, and Discussion. Before you can w such a summary, you need to read and understand the article.

Reading the Article

➢ ➢ Allow enough time. Plan to spend at least one half of the time you devote to this assignment to reading and understanding the article. Before you can write about resear you have to evaluate it. Before you can evaluate it, you have to understand it. Before y understand it, you have to digest it. Before you can digest, you have to read it, thoroug This takes more time than most students realize.

➢ ➢ Scan the article first. You will get bogged down in detail if you try to read a new a from start to finish. Initially you should briefly look at each section to identify:

- general information about the study (stated in the Abstract and Introduction)
- the hypothesis (-es) or research questions (in the Introduction)
- the test of the hypothesis, including the sample, variables and operational definitio the procedures used (in the Methods)
- the findings (in the Results, including tables and figures)
- how the findings were interpreted (in the Discussion).

Underline key sentences or write the key point (hypothesis, design, etc.) of each parag the margin. It may also be helpful to write down these key points on a summary sheet come across them.
