That such a regime as Castro's, 40 miles from the United States' coast, should align itself with America's principal enemy was unacceptable and the United States would have been well within its rights in seeking to overthrow Castro. But there was an uncertain response, first from Eisenhower, then from Kennedy. So nothing was done under Eisenhower, though many plans were considered.

When Kennedy took over in January 1961 he found a proposal, apparently supported by the CIA, and by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, for 12 000 armed Cuban exiles to be landed in an area called the Bay of Pigs and start a popular uprising. It is hard to believe that the experienced Eisenhower would have given final approval to this naïve scheme. Eisenhower would have waited for Castro to make a false move that would have allowed America to intervene openly.

Kennedy lacked resolution and weakly allowed the operation to go ahead. The Chiefs of Staff were worried by the CIA's insistence that the operation was to be preceded by an air strike launched from bases in Nicaragua, by US aircraft, acquired by the exiles, painted to resemble Cuban aircraft. The operation was a total disaster primarily because Castro was able to read all about it, in advance, in the US media; and once things went wrong Kennedy refused to authorise the US carrier, cruising 10 miles offshore, to come to the rescue of the stricken men pinned down in the swampy bay. Eisenhower described the operation as 'a profile in timidity and indecisions'. American opinion was outraged and would have supported direct intervention. One senior policy maker thought a decision by Kennedy 'to send in troops or drop bombs would have had the support of at least 90 per cent of the people'. But the government dithered.

The day before he was inaugurated as President in January 1961 Kennedy was briefed by Eisenhower on a number of topics, including the plan to help anti-Castro guerillas. Kennedy was surprised by the size of the plan but he was not opposed to it. He allowed the CIA to organise Cuban exiles for an invasion. However, he insisted that any American involvement must be concealed.

Despite the CIA's continued confidence, there were problems with the plan. The CIA's assumption that, if things did go wrong, the United States would support a failing mission by direct military involvement, ran counter to Kennedy's public position. From the beginning everything did go wrong. Only six American bombers painted in Cuban colours, as if flown by rebel Cubans, took off from Nicaragua in support of the invasion which depended on air cover for success. Contrary to CIA expectations, the attack provoked no popular uprising against Castro.

Kennedy called a crisis meeting and considered sending unmarked US jets. However, everyone in the meeting recognised that the situation was hopeless. At the end of three days fighting, the survivors surrendered. The CIA had vastly overestimated the support of the Cuban people for a military operation to 'liberate' them.
