Student Exploration: Human Evolution - Skull Analysis

Directions: Follow the instructions to go through the simulation. Respond to the questions and prompts in the orange boxes.

Vocabulary: bipedal, canine, cranial capacity, cranium, evolve, foramen magnum, hominid, hominin, index, maxilla, orbit, palate, skull

Prior Knowledge Questions (Do these BEFORE using the Gizmo.)

1. Label one of the skulls below as human and the other as a chimpanzee skull.

Human

Chimpanzee

2. What features did you use to identify which skull was human and which was chimpanzee?

The chimpanzee's skull is shaped differently and the jaw comes out more.

Gizmo Warm-up

In 1924, a fossilized skull that looked very similar to a chimp skull was discovered. But the skull most definitely did not belong to a chimp. The location of the foramen magnum—a hole in the skull where the spinal cord exits—indicated that the individual was bipedal, or walked on two legs. This fossil was some of the earliest evidence of human evolution.

Using the Human Evolution – Skull Analysis Gizmo, you will discover some of the ways that skulls can be used to learn about human evolution. Start by comparing two modern hominids: a human and a chimpanzee.

1. Examine the Front view of the Homo sapiens (modern human) skull. Then, use the Select skull menu to examine the same view of the Pan troglodytes (chimp) skull.

How do the skulls compare?

The human skull has a smaller jaw, smaller teeth, and larger forehead than the chimp. The chimp skull has a larger brow ridge and nose.

2. Now, examine the Bottom view of the two skulls. How do they compare?

The mouth of the chimp skulls is bigger. The foramen magnum on the human skull is closer to the front of the skull.

Radical-Local Teaching and Learning Seth Chaiklin, Mariane Hedegaard, 2005-02-01 The cultural historical approach started in the 1930s by Lev Vygotsky who held that learning and instruction are the means to development is the foundation for the Radical Local Theory of Teaching and Learning formulated by Mariane Hedegaard and Seth Chaiklin in the first part of the book The central concern in this approach to education is how to integrate particular historical and cultural conditions that the children encounter into educational practices The second half of the book is an extensive case study of an after school programme for Puerto Rican primary students in East Harlem New York conducted in a radical local perspective This programme focussed on the history of the community and of Puerto Rican immigration and the study describes how it helped students become both more positive and more critical about their backgrounds By acquiring basic academic skills in a theoretical framework the children learn how to analyse their own local situation addressing not only immediate issues housing conditions family life community dynamics but also historical issues Unlike apparently similar culturally responsive approaches to teaching underprivileged children radical local teaching explicitly uses subject matter teaching to encourage children s development in relation to their social conditions Hedegaard and Chaiklin detail how they developed concrete lesson plans in a radical local perspective and enumerate the accomplishments as well as the difficulties they encountered in implementing this approach
