

Remember...

To achieve a safe shot, you must be in a position to follow through on the shot. Before you pull the trigger, make sure you have a clear path to the target and a clear exit.

The most effective location for a turkey is in the head and neck. The greatest risk to the hunter is the turkey's wing, which can strike the hunter's face or eye.

Vital Shots

Every hunter wants to bring home the game he or she is seeking, and sometimes the only way to do it is by inflicting a minimal amount of suffering. To achieve this, you must be sure that you understand the anatomy of the game you're shooting and know how to place a shot for a clean kill.

Where To Shoot

- The most effective shot on a deer is in the vital organs—the heart and lungs. In large game animals, these organs lie in the chest cavity behind the front shoulder. A lung shot is the most effective shot for big game.
- The aim of the vital organs shot is to cause major blood vessel and arterial damage. A shot in this area causes considerable bleeding. If the animal drops the immediately will stop to flee, it will have a blood trail that's easy to track.
- Aside from being a good technique, the key to a clean kill is position. Hunters should face deer in the vital organs only. If you do not have a clear shot to the vital organs, wait until the animal presents the best possible shot.

Choosing the Proper Shot Angle

The shot angle is the angle at which the animal is standing in relation to the hunter. Knowing which angles offer the most effective—and least effective—shots is an essential part of being a responsible hunter.

Broadside

The broadside shot angle is the preferred shot angle for both hunters and their families for larger game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear.

- Elk: The broadside position offers several excellent shots for a hunter. The best target is the shoulder and chest area. A bullet of the correct weight that is fired from a distance adequate for the game will break the shoulder bone and sever the lungs or heart.
- Deer: The broadside angle offers the best shot for the largest big game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear. For most big game, the shooting spot is straight up from the back side of the front leg, one-third of the way up from the bottom of the chest. The arrow will penetrate the rib but not the shoulder bone, so the deer will fall forward, and not behind the shoulder.
- Quartering Away: The quartering away shot angle is when your target is facing away from you but at an angle. The animal is usually looking away from you.
 - Elk: For hunters, the quartering away position offers several shooting spots on all big game. The area just behind the shoulder is the best shooting spot for those presentations of the vital organs. Focus on hitting the chest area above the opposite front leg.

The preferred shot for larger game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear is broadside.

Firing Positions

There are four standard rifle firing positions: prone, standing, sitting, and kneeling.

Prone

The prone position is the most stable of the four positions. Because it's the easiest to hold, it's the best position for maximizing the effectiveness of long-range, heavy-caliber, sniper rifles and bolt-action rifles.

Safety Tip

Shooting a firearm can cause explosion and permanent hearing loss and eye damage. Wear eye protection.

- When shooting any firearm, always wear properly fitting eye protection. For target practice, use an eyeshield or goggles or both, with a high frame protection rating (ASTM).

When hunting, eye protection is not worn. However, that often means a more accurate target, but there's always a risk of injury. The American National Rifle Association (ANRA) and the National Shooting Sports Foundation (NSSF) recommend wearing eye protection when hunting.

- Also wear suitable ear protection, such as shooting glasses with high-impact lenses, when shooting to protect your vision.

Standing

With neither arm supported, this is the most difficult position for firing an accurate shot. Rather than trying to hold the barrel steady, which is impossible, try to keep movement of the barrel to a small area as possible. Snipers, trained marksmen will produce the best shot.

Sitting

Both arms are supported by your legs. More so the prone position, this is the most stable position.

Kneeling

With only one arm braced, the kneeling position is less steady than the prone and sitting positions.
