

Introducing Macintosh.
What makes it tick. And talk.

Well, to begin with, I'll write of alternating current.

Secondly, none of the fastest hardways to come down the pile in the last 5 years.

Macintosh's brain is the same blazingly-fast 32-bit microprocessor we gave our other brainchild, the Lisa™ Personal Computer. The most powerful than the 86-in-8088 found in current generation computers.

At least in the same Lisa Technology of windows, pull-down menus, mouse commands and icons. All of which make that 32-bit power far more useful by making the Macintosh™ Personal Computer far easier to use than current generation computers. In fact, if you can point without touching yourself, you can use it.

Now for some small talk:

Thanks to its size, if you can't bring the problem to a Macintosh, you can always being a Macintosh to the problem. (It weighs 9 pounds less than the most popular "portable.")

Another miracle of miniaturization is Macromin's built-in 7½" drive. Its disk size 400K—more than conventional 7½" floppies. So while they're big enough to hold a load full of work, they're small enough to fit in a shirt pocket. And, they're truly encased in a rigid plastic so they're totally protected.

And talk about reprogramming:

There are already plenty of programs to honor a Martin Luther King Jr. birthday.

a program that, for the first time, lets a personal computer produce virtually any image the human hand can create. There's more software on the way from developers like Microsoft,* Lotus, and Software Publishers Corp. to mention a few.

And with Macintosh BASIC, Macintosh Pascal and our Macintosh Toolbox for writing your own mouse-driven programs, you, too, could make big bucks in your spare time.

You can even program Macintosh to talk in other languages, like Hebrew or Serbo-Croatian, because it has a built-in polyphonic sound generator capable of producing high-quality speech or music.

The "New York" clause is not a contract with the newspaper, but a contract with the publisher.

How can you tell this solution worked for you? It's extremely difficult to quantify success.

of the success of the 1990s, it is not clear that the 2000s will be any different.

All the right connections.

On the back of the machine, you'll find built-in RS232 and RS422 AppleLink serial communication ports. Which means you can connect printers, modems and other peripherals without adding I/O cards. It also means that Macintosh is ready to hook in to a local area network. (With AppleLink, you will be able to interconnect up to 31 different Apple computers and peripherals.)

Should you wish to order this journal's content with an external disk.

drive, you can do so without paying for a debit-card reader—that company's built in, too.

There's also a built-in connector to Microsoft's Excel, a feature that runs up to 100 or computers that can use the same shared software.

One last note:

Now that you've seen some of the legs of the technology, the engineering genius and the software scientists that comprise

The road from conventional computers will like to point you in the direction of your nearest authorized Apple dealer.

Over 1000 of them are eagerly waiting to put a room in your hand. In one point-and-click stroke perfectly clear, the real estate of Macintosh will its 32-bit Low Technology or its 32-bit floppy disks, or its serial ports, or its software, or its subassembly sound generation

The real genius is that you don't have to be a genius to use a Blackboard. You just have to be smart enough to buy one.

Soon there'll be just two kinds of people:
Those who use computers, and those who use Apple
