History Education in Lebanon and the Borders of the Nation Bouchra Saab, 2025-09-01 This study shows that widely used history textbooks in Lebanon are more standardized and censored than in most liberal democratic countries and relatively similar in form and content to textbooks from Syria and Iraq A diversity of historical narratives has progressively converged into one dominant narrative which entails a standard definition of the self In contrast the other is defined through the exclusion of religious groups considered exogenous and ethnicities considered inferior In addition women are marginalized Surprisingly the textbooks affiliated with Hezbollah a Shiite militia financed by the Iranian regime depart to a certain extent from this definition While most previous research on Lebanese history textbooks has focused on the diverging narratives of religious communities this study views these textbooks as the outcome of a tension between two major forces educational traditions on the one hand and contemporary politics on the other

Postwar History Education in Japan and the Germanys Julian Dierkes, 2010-12-14 How did East and West Germany and Japan reconstitute national identity after World War II Did all three experience parallel reactions to national trauma and reconstruction History education shaped how these nations reconceived their national identities Because the content of history education was controlled by different actors history education materials framed national identity in very different ways In Japan where the curriculum was controlled by bureaucrats bent on maintaining their purported neutrality materials focused on the empirical building blocks of history who where what at the expense of discussions of historical responsibility In East Germany where party cadres controlled the curriculum students were taught that World War II was a capitalist aberration In West Germany where teachers controlled the curriculum students were taught the lessons of shame and then regeneration after historians turned away from grand national narratives This book shows that constructions of national identity are not easily malleable on the basis of moral and political concerns only but that they are subject to institutional constraints and opportunities In an age when post conflict reconstruction and reconciliation has become a major focus of international policies the analysis offers important implications for the parallel revision of portrayals of national history and the institutional reconstruction of policy making regimes
