

Warhol's Death and Disaster Series

Andy Warhol's Death and Disaster series is an arrangement of artwork with a unique act of discrepancy. This disaster series shows photographs which have one color, are a replication of the same images, or have no color at all. Warhol began this series in 1962. The images he used were mostly from newspapers and magazines. The photographs depict tragedies and disasters as seen in newspapers. In his work, he tried to tell people into accepting these disasters and tragedies as a part of life. In this paper, I will show how his work denotes its discrepancy in society as a witness to the daily endeavors of disaster and that death is an aspect of life that people have to reckon with.

The most imperative part of Warhol's work is the selection of the soup can. In this case, he wanted to reveal his view of America, and to him, eating Campbell's soup represented being American. He wanted people to recognize the images which are part of our daily lives (Andy Warhol Disaster, n.d). In one of his paintings, 11 Soup Cans, there is a lot of repetition which he regularly used to magnify the variation in time.

Commentary:

The final sentence to the opening paragraph makes a bold claim. In doing so, however, it sets the paper, and thus the reader, on a defined course, prompting the reader to read to the end to see how the author lives up to the claim.

added conclusion that document the stories about how qualitative data analysis occurred Chapters for this expanded edition represent a diversity of disciplines e g criminology family science education health nutrition sociology sport psychology that focus on the human experience and describe a diversity of methodological approaches These chapters may be used to introduce readers to newer or innovative ways of analysing data It moves beyond the usual vague statement of themes emerged from the data to show readers how researchers actively and consciously arrive at their themes and conclusions revealing the complexity and time involved in making sense of thousands of pages of interview data multiple data sources and diverse types of data The various authors provide detailed narratives into how they analysed their data from previous publications The methodologies range from arts based research autoethnography community based participatory research ethnography grounded theory to narrative analysis The volume allows readers to be seemingly in the room with these international scholars representing Canada the US Austria Germany the UK and the Philippines and getting their own hands vicariously dirty with the data This expanded edition also includes a conclusion chapter in which the authors reflect on commonalities across the chapters Supplemental figures images and screenshots which are referred to in the chapters are included in an accompanying eResource that can be accessed at www.routledge.com/9781032183213 as well as links to the previously published work on which the chapters are based This book is an invaluable resource for experienced and novice qualitative researchers throughout the social sciences as well as undergraduate and postgraduate students in the field

Inducing large-scale diffusion of innovation Ingrid Mignon, 2016-09-06 In order for the innovation process to be successful not only do innovations need to be developed and reached the market but once they are available for users they have to spread on a large scale In the innovation literature a complete explanation is lacking of why some innovations reach a phase of large scale diffusion faster than others including both actor and system level components For instance what drives and hinders adopters to decide to adopt the innovation on the actor and system levels and how adopters who participate in the largescale diffusion handle the adoption process and the implementation of the innovation are questions still unanswered As a consequence it remains unclear how the large scale diffusion process can be facilitated and speeded up This thesis addresses these issues by studying the case of renewable electricity RE innovations After decades of technology development and improvements RE innovations are now mature enough to be bought off the shelf by individuals and organizations Yet the pace of their large scale diffusion is still too slow for countries to reach their RE generation targets and to limit global warming Through qualitative and quantitative methods including 59 semi structured interviews with adopters project developers and experts in Sweden France and Germany as well as a survey sent to the whole population of RE adopters in Sweden an adopter perspective is taken in order to explore the adoption dynamics shaping large scale diffusion of innovation More specifically the thesis identifies the drivers and challenges of adoption during large scale diffusion and their impact on adoption decisions and strategies The outcome of this work is presented in a compiling synthesis and six appended papers

Findings show that adopters are heterogeneous with regard to their characteristics as well as to the drivers challenges and strategies that affect their adoption processes Depending on their perceptions some adopters are more influenced by drivers and challenges than others and as a consequence adopters base their adoption decisions on different motives and follow different strategies to implement the innovation Moreover the results suggest that the dynamics that occur during the large scale diffusion process does not only come from the actor level and the level of the system where the largescale diffusion takes place but also from parallel systems which are related to adopters and their contexts including both the social networks and the industries they primarily belong This makes adopters the central drivers of the innovation diffusion process and this distinguishes the dynamics of large scale diffusion from the dynamics of innovation development and early diffusion in which the innovation is the central component Based on the findings about the adoption dynamics shaping large scale diffusion the thesis raises the need to consider large scale diffusion as part of a new system different from the innovation system and that acknowledges the specificities of this process A tentative model accounting for the central role of adopters and for the interactions between adopters the diffusion system and parallel systems is introduced Finally the implications of these findings for policy makers and managers are put forward In particular there is a need for policies acknowledging adopters heterogeneity as well as the new challenges of large scale diffusion Strategies developed by adopters can be a source of inspiration for policy makers who can for instance promote the use of intermediaries of adopters task environment and networks as well as the formation of coalitions among adopters

A Variety of Causes Paul Noordhof, 2020-09-03 This is the first book length defence of a counterfactual theory of causation The analysis defended is new It expresses the idea that independent of its competitors a cause raises the chance of an effect over its mean background chance by a complete causal chain The analysis depends upon a novel development of David Lewis's Theory of Counterfactuals One consequence of the analysis is that causation is not transitive Causation is also nonsymmetric The counterfactual basis of causal nonsymmetry is the result of a number of different and sometimes interacting nonsymmetries The analysis allows for the development of a novel theory of events whose nature is independent of their role in causation and the identification of one other important causal relationship property causation Although compatible with Hume's denial of necessary connections between distinct existences a key feature of the theory is that it benefits from being independent of the Humean framework There are two ways in which something may be metaphysically fundamental vertically and horizontally Many metaphysicians emphasise vertical fundamentality and focus on truth making The book rejects this emphasis and the truth making approach in particular Horizontally fundamental metaphysical entities are those that are necessary components in different possible universes Causation has a claim to be horizontally fundamental the cement of any universe Laws are patterns of causation realised in different metaphysical frameworks such as those articulated by Lewis Armstrong and the powers ontologists The book recognises varieties of causation both in for example counting cases of double prevention and causation by genuine processes as types of causation and allowing that the analysis identifies causes across these different metaphysical frameworks
