

How a TTL flash exposure works

Advanced TTL flash systems, such as Canon's E-TTL II and Nikon's iTTL, use a low power pre-flash before the exposure starts; in some instances you may notice this, but the pre-flash and main flash are usually indistinguishable. Light is reflected by the subject back through the lens and strikes the shutter curtains, where it is measured by the camera's regular metering system rather than by a dedicated flash meter.

How a manual flash exposure works

There is no pre-flash or automatic exposure adjustment by the camera – it's down to you to set an appropriate output. With the flash set to manual, you can adjust its power in fractional steps. A setting of 1/1 means the flash will fire at full power, but you can reduce the power (and the flash exposure) by selecting 1/2, 1/4, 1/8 and so on.

always possible This is the point at which photographers tend to reach for a portable on camera flash Indeed these intense light sources can prove invaluable but only if you know how to use them effectively In the hands of an inexperienced photographer on camera flash will produce images that look flat and lifeless images with harsh shadows washed out skin tones cavernous black backgrounds and other unappealing visual characteristics In this book acclaimed wedding and portrait photographer Neil van Niekerk shows you how to avoid the pitfalls photographers new to speedlights often encounter so that you can produce professional images using on camera flash You l learn to use simple accessories to manipulate the quality of light from your flash and how to improve a lighting scenario by enhancing rather than overwhelming the existing light When the available light is too low and too uneven to be combined with flash he shows you how to override it completely with flash and with some thought and careful application of specialized techniques still get results that look great On camera flash is one of the most challenging light sources to master but with the techniques in this book you ll learn to use it with confidence For wedding and environmental portrait photographers who must work in ever changing lighting scenarios this can mean better images and better sales
