

Edith Wharton

Edith Wharton (born Edith Newbold Jones, January 24, 1862 – August 15, 1937) was an American writer and designer. Wharton drew upon her insider's knowledge of the upper-class New York "aristocracy" to portray realistically the lives and morals of the Gilded Age. In 1907, she became the first woman to win the Pulitzer Prize in Fiction, for her novel The Age of Innocence. She was inducted into the National Academy of Arts in 1928. Among her other well-known works are The House of Mirth, the novella Ethan Frome, and several notable ghost stories.

Despite not publishing her first novel until she was forty, Wharton became an extraordinarily productive writer. In addition to her 15 novels, seven novellas, and eighty-five short stories, she published poetry, books on design, travel, travel and lecture notes, and a memoir.

Many of Wharton's novels are characterized by subtle irony, and she is often credited with being the first American writer to use stream-of-consciousness narrative. Her work is considered to be a reflection of the American social and cultural conditions of her time.

Wharton's novels, such as The House of Mirth and Ethan Frome, are set in the Gilded Age, a time of extreme wealth and social inequality in the United States. The novels explore the lives of the upper class, the lives of the poor, and the lives of the middle class.
