(Re)Constructing Memory: School Textbooks and the Imagination of the Nation James H. Williams, 2014-08-08

This book examines the shifting portrayal of the nation in school textbooks in 14 countries during periods of rapid political social and economic change. Drawing on a range of analytic strategies, the authors examine history and civics textbooks and the teaching of such texts along with other prominent curricular materials. Children's readers, a required text penned by the head of state, a Holocaust curriculum, etc. The authors analyze the uses of history and pedagogy in building, reinforcing, and redefining the nation and state, especially in the light of challenges to its legitimacy. The primary focus is on countries in developing or transitional contexts. Issues include the teaching of democratic civics in a multiethnic state with little history of democratic governance; shifts in teaching about the Khmer Rouge in post-conflict Cambodia; children's readers used to define national space in former republics of the Soviet Union; the development of Holocaust education in a context where citizens were both victims and perpetrators of violence; the creation of a national past in Turkmenistan; and so forth. The case studies are supplemented by commentary, an introduction, and a conclusion. Ethiopia Observer, 1964. Includes special issues.

Genocide Bad Sim Kern, 2025-04-22. Part activist memoir, part crash course in Jewish and Palestinian history. Genocide Bad dismantles Zionist propaganda and maps a course towards collective liberation in ten unapologetic essays. Part activist memoir, part crash course in Jewish and Palestinian history. Genocide Bad dismantles Zionist propaganda in ten unapologetic essays. Drawing connections between Biblical promises and exploding pagers, medieval dress codes, and modern-day apartheid, Kern sketches a sweeping history of imperialism with their characteristic blend of far-ranging research, pop culture insights, and scathing humor. Kern, a former teacher, journalist, novelist, and book influencer, gained international recognition as an anti-Zionist Jewish activist in the days after October 7th, 2023. At a time when social media was flooded with "I Stand with Israel" posts, Kern started sharing content encouraging their followers to read Palestinian books, learn Palestinian history, and question Western reporting on Palestine. Videos, which went viral into tens of millions of views. Despite facing hate messages, death threats, and exile from the Zionist Jewish community, Kern has remained steadfast in their advocacy over the past year. They've posted daily videos on Palestinian Jewish and colonial history, and they've raised over 500,000 in direct aid for families in Gaza while navigating the challenges of pregnancy, childbirth, and parenting a newborn. In Genocide Bad, Kern reflects on the life experiences that led them to anti-Zionist activism while capturing and expanding upon their online educational content. Kern doesn't flinch when confronting the horrors of genocides past and present, but there is also tremendous hope contained in these pages, hope that springs from examples of courage and resilience in the face of extreme violence and from the kinds of resistance that might just lead to our collective liberation. Ethiopia Paulos Milkias, 1989.
