Sugar Confectionery and Chocolate Manufacture R. Lees,2012-12-06 The authors had five objectives in preparing this book i to bring together relevant information on many raw materials used in the manufacture of sweets and chocolate ii to describe the principles involved and to relate them to production with maximum economy but maintaining high quality iii to describe both traditional and modern production processes in particular those continuous methods which are finding increasing application iv to give basic recipes and methods set out in a form for easy reference for producing a large variety of sweets and capable of easy modification to suit the raw materials and plant available v to explain the elementary calculations most likely to be required The various check lists and charts showing the more likely faults and how to eliminate them reflect the fact that art still plays no small part in this industry To help users all over the world whatever units they employ most for mulations are given in parts by weight but tables of conversion factors are provided at the end of the book There also will be found a collection of other general reference data in tabular form while the Glossary explains a number of technical terms many of them peculiar to the industry

Recipes ,1950 The Secrets of Good Cooking Sister St. Mary Edith,1928 The Science of Sugar Confectionery William P Edwards,2015-11-09 Confectionery is a topic close to many people s hearts and its manufacture involves some interesting science The confectionery industry is divided into three classes chocolate flour and sugar confectionery It is the background science of this latter category that is covered in The Science of Sugar Confectionery The manufacture of confectionery is not a science based industry as these products have traditionally been created by skilled confectioners working empirically In fact scientific understanding of the production process has only been acquired retroactively Historically however sugar confectionery has had technological synergies with the pharmaceutical industry such as making sugar tablets and applying panned sugar coatings This book gives an introduction to the subject with some basic definitions and commonly used ingredients and then moves on to discuss the chemistry of various types of sugar confectionery These include sugar glasses boiled sweets grained sugar products fondants toffees and fudges hydrocolloids gums pastilles and jellies and concludes with a chapter dedicated to sugar free confectionery

The Technology of Cake Making A.J. Bent,E.B. Bennion,G.S.T. Bamford,2013-03-09 The popularity of the 1973 fifth edition of The Technology of Cake Making has continued in many of the English speaking countries throughout the world This sixth edition has been comprehensively revised and brought up to date with new chapters on Cream butter and milkfat products Lactose Yeast aeration Emulsions and emulsifiers Water activity and Reduced sugar Eggs and egg products Baking fats and lower fat goods The chapters on

Sugars Chemical aeration Nuts in confectionery Chocolate Pastries Nutritional value and Packaging have been completely rewritten The increased need for the continuous development of new products does not of necessity mean that new technology has to be constantly introduced Many of the good old favourites may continue to be produced for many years and they form suitable bench marks for new product development The sixth edition introduces the use of relative density to replace specific volume as a measure of the amount of aeration in a cake batter the use of relative density is in line with international agreement Specific volume is kept as a measurement of baked product volume since the industry is comfortable with the concept that subject to an upper limit an increase in specific volume coincides with improvement in cake quality
