Fostering Transformative Research in the Geographical Sciences National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Earth Sciences and Resources, Geographical Sciences Committee, Committee on Identifying Transformative Research in the Geographical Sciences, 2019-04-22 The central purpose of all research is to create new knowledge In the geographical sciences this is driven by a desire to create new knowledge about the relations between space place and the anthropogenic and non anthropogenic features and processes of the Earth But some research goes beyond these modest aims and creates new opportunities for further research or affects the process of knowledge acquisition more broadly or changes the way other researchers in a domain think about the world and go about their business Due to its positive impacts transformative research can be regarded as inherently having greater value than more conventional research and funding agencies clearly regard transformative research as something to be encouraged and funded through special programs Assessments of transformative research funding initiatives are few and provide a mixed picture of their effectiveness The challenge is whether transformative research can be identified at the time it is proposed rather than after it has been conducted communicated and its influence on the discipline has become clear

Fostering Transformative Research in the Geographical Sciences reviews how transformative research has emerged in the past what its early markers were and makes recommendations for how it can be nurtured in the future

Barriers and facilitators to women's participation in farmer producer organizations: A qualitative study exploring women's empowerment and collective efficacy in Jharkhand, India Bhanjdeo, Arundhita, 2025-04-09 Over the last decade in India farmer producer organizations FPOs have emerged as a means of collectivizing smallholder farmers and providing them access to extension innovation and market services FPOs that center women farmers traditionally at a disadvantage vis vis their male counterparts in access to resources and extension can serve to enhance women s agency and collective action in agricultural value chains We used 59 key informant interviews and nine focus group discussions to examine the constraints to and facilitators of women s and men s participation in three women only FPOs in Jharkhand an eastern Indian state Additionally we study the gender and power dynamics in such FPOs and the potential of collective efficacy to enhance agricultural and empowerment outcomes The FPO intervention we evaluated was supported by an NGO that provides FPO members with both agricultural and gender based inputs to improve agronomic practices market linkages agricultural yields and profits and the role of women both within the FPO and within their households and communities In this paper we provide contextual insights on what works to empower women in this context Women s perceptions of the benefits from FPO membership were heterogeneous Our qualitative analysis suggests a nuanced picture of women's autonomy and decision making within and outside their household further shaped by women's and men's perception of shifts in women's access to resources and services. The emerging lessons provide inputs for development implementers and policymakers to recognize diverse contextual barriers in designing FPO interventions to enable and enhance women empowerment outcomes. The research also contributes to the body of knowledge on local gender norms and understanding of empowerment.
