Indirect Characterization

GOALS: The LITERACY COOKBOOK analyzes how and why individuals, events, or ideas develop and interact over the course of a text. DIRECTIONS: Indirect Characterization is when an author develops a character through the character's speech, appearance, other characters' words, actions, and other characters' opinions. Give examples of indirect characterization in the work below for different characters.

Character	The Character's Words (What does the character say about the character?)	Others' Words about Character (What does the others say about the character?)	Traits
Caesar	Is it a banquet? Or is there more here? I do not know the man I should point To stand as their open foe.	BRUTUS: What would they say to me, that make at Caesar? That he will with words assassinate? but can that? How is it? Some reason and more enough. When there's to be in that not only more.	Domination of others Suspicious Politically astute
Brutus	It is to weight heaven, the general good, And Caesar to the private grief of the other And I will look on both sides, and For let the gods so speed me as I live, The reasons of heaven more than man's heart.	CAESAR: Is he not high in all the people's hearts, And that which would appear offense to us, Is a change to us, as well as to ourselves? CAESAR: He will be with us and our great need of him.	Politically astute Concern for the Roman people Concern for others And a sense of duty
	WILL BRUTUS, thou art noble, but I am The honorable man, may be wronged, And that is a disgrace, therefore it is more Than that I should look on both sides, and For let the gods so speed me as I live, The reasons of heaven more than man's heart.	BRUTUS: I do not know the man I should point To stand as their open foe. He is noble And a great one, and he is noble. But through the death of him, he is not His death, Antony, he is not so noble As it is to be with us and our great need of him.	Domination Politically astute Concern for others And a sense of duty
