

EXAMPLE 11

- At what angle θ is the wheel most likely to be pushed?
- Draw a free-body diagram for the wheel in the plane of the page for the case of an arbitrary angle θ . (Ignore the horizontal and vertical forces on the wheel from the wall and on the ground.)
- How does the free-body diagram change if the force is not sufficiently large?
- Repeat the case of the wheel in that case.

- Draw a free-body diagram of a ball with the force. The ball is released from the ceiling and falls 0.5 m from its original position.
- Draw a free-body diagram of the ball immediately after the drop.
- As the ball falls, the distance between the ball and the ceiling will increase. How does the distance between the ball and the ceiling change?
- If the ball has a mass of 0.5 kg and the distance from the point of suspension to the center of the ball is 1.2 m, draw a free-body diagram of the ball immediately after release.

- Draw a free-body diagram of a ball of mass m in a vertical circle of radius R . The speed of the ball at the top of the circle is v_t and the speed at the bottom of the circle is v_b . Show that the sum of the forces on the ball and distance of the center of mass is given by $\frac{mv_b^2}{R} - \frac{mv_t^2}{R} = 2mg$.
