Encounters Old and New in World History Alan Karras, Laura J. Mitchell, 2017-06-30 This collection of essays asserts the specific value of world history research and teaching showing how the field contributes to the larger historical profession and offering concrete suggestions to develop more interaction between the academy and the public The twelve contributors each with their own academic areas of interest are experienced scholars and classroom teachers Uniting them together in this volume is their professional relationship with Jerry H Bentley 1949 2012 This shared connection served as a catalyst to showcase Bentley s enduring legacy a commitment to investigating large scale questions with detailed empirical evidence that explains the human condition documenting both patterns of similarity and difference in ways that account for regional and temporal variations The volume continues Bentley s meticulous attention to world historical methods focus on scale cross cultural encounter comparison periodization critical geography and interdisciplinarity Encounters Old and New in World History responds to provocations that Jerry Bentley tendered in his scholarship and through his professional activities Contributors interrogate the institutional settings disciplinary proclivities methodological choices and diverse source bases of world history research and teaching Several essays address the ways in which present day concerns influence research on local and global scales Other essays pay particular attention to the production and circulation of knowledge across regional temporal and class boundaries as well as between the academy and the wider public Claiming the centrality of globally informed and focused approaches to historical inquiry researchers continue the conversations that Bentley carried on through his own scholarship teaching editing of the Journal of World History participating in public forums and contributing to public discussions about the place of history in understanding today s global integration The stakes involved in asking questions about the shared history of humankind continue to increase in the current era of intensified globalization It is incumbent upon scholars with the skills to work across linguistic geographic temporal and disciplinary boundaries to show the ways that cross cultural encounters happened historically and to point out how such interactions play out in the institutions classrooms and public debates where historical interpretations are created and shared

Sport and the Home Front Matthew Taylor, 2020-05-31 Sport and the Home Front contributes in significant and original ways to our understanding of the social and cultural history of the Second World War It explores the complex and contested treatment of sport in government policy media representations and the everyday lives of wartime citizens Acknowledged as a core component of British culture sport was also frequently criticised marginalised and downplayed existing in a constant state of tension between notions of normality and exceptionality routine and disruption the everyday and the extraordinary The author argues that sport played an important yet hitherto neglected role in maintaining the morale of the British people and providing a reassuring sense of familiarity at a time of mass anxiety and threat Through the conflict sport became increasingly regarded as characteristic of Britishness a symbol of the ordinary everyday lives in defence of which the war was being fought Utilised to support the welfare of war workers the entertainment of service personnel at home and abroad and the character formation of schoolchildren and young citizens sport permeated wartime culture contributing to new ways in which the British imagined the past present and future Using a wide range of personal and public records from diary writing and club minute books to government archives this book breaks new ground in both the history of the British home front and the history of sport

Whose America? Jonathan Zimmerman,2022-08-26 In this expanded edition of his 2002 book Zimmerman surveys how battles over public education have become conflicts at the heart of American national identity Critical Race Theory The 1619 Project Mask mandates As the headlines remind us American public education is still wracked by culture wars But these conflicts have shifted sharply over the past two decades marking larger changes in the ways that Americans imagine themselves In his 2002 book Whose America Zimmerman predicted that religious differences would continue to dominate the culture wars Twenty years after that seminal work Zimmerman has reconsidered arguments over what American history is what it means and how it is taught have exploded with special force in recent years In this substantially expanded new edition Zimmerman meditates on the history of the culture wars in the classroom and on what our inability to find common ground might mean for our future

The Black Officer Corps Isaac Hampton,2013 The U S Armed Forces started integrating its services in 1948 and with that push more African Americans started rising through the ranks to become officers although the number of black officers has always been much lower than African Americans total percentage in the military Astonishingly the experiences of these unknown reformers have largely gone unexamined and unreported until now The Black Officer Corps traces segments of the African American officers experience from 1946 1973 From generals who served in the Pentagon and Vietnam to enlisted servicemen and officers wives Isaac Hampton has conducted over seventy five oral history interviews with African American officers Through their voices this book illuminates what they dealt with on a day to day basis including cultural differences racist attitudes unfair promotion standards the civil rights movement Black Power and the experience of being in ROTC at Historically Black Colleges Hampton provides a nuanced study of the people whose service reshaped race relations in the U S Armed Forces ending with how the military attempted to control racism with the creation of the Defense Race Relations Institute of 1971 The Black Officer Corps gives us a much fuller picture of the experience of black officers and a place to start asking further questions

Working Class History Working Class History, 2020-12-01 History is not made by kings politicians or a few rich individuals it is made by all of us From the temples of ancient Egypt to spacecraft orbiting Earth workers and ordinary people everywhere have walked out sat down risen up and fought back against exploitation discrimination colonization and oppression Working Class History presents a distinct selection of people s history through hundreds of on this day in history anniversaries that are as diverse and international as the working class itself Women young people people of color workers migrants Indigenous people LGBT people disabled people older people the unemployed home workers and every other part of the working class have organized and taken action that has shaped our world and improvements in living and working conditions have been won only by years of violent conflict and sacrifice These everyday acts of resistance and rebellion highlight just some of those who have struggled for a better world and provide lessons and inspiration for those of us fighting in the present Going day by day this book paints a picture of how and why the world came to be as it is how some have tried to change it and the lengths to which the rich and powerful have gone to maintain and increase their wealth and influence This handbook of grassroots movements curated by the popular Working Class History project features many hidden histories and untold stories reinforced with inspiring images further reading and a foreword from legendary author and dissident Noam Chomsky

African American Urban History since World War II Kenneth L. Kusmer, Joe W. Trotter, 2009-08-01 Historians have devoted surprisingly little attention to African American urban history of the postwar period especially compared with earlier decades Correcting this imbalance African American Urban History since World War II features an exciting mix of seasoned scholars and fresh new voices whose combined efforts provide the first comprehensive assessment of this important subject. The first of this volume's five groundbreaking sections focuses on black migration and Latino immigration, examining tensions and alliances that emerged between African Americans and other groups. Exploring the challenges of residential segregation and deindustrialization, later sections tackle such topics as the real estate industry's discriminatory practices, the movement of middle class blacks to the suburbs, and the influence of black urban activists on national employment and social welfare policies. Another group of contributors examines these themes through the lens of gender, chronicling deindustrialization's disproportionate impact on women and women's leading roles in movements for social change. Concluding with a set of essays on black culture and consumption, this volume fully realizes its goal of linking local transformations with the national and global processes that affect urban class and race relations.

Tiger Check Steven A. Fino, 2017-11. The fielding of automated flight controls and weapons systems in fighter aircraft from 1950 to 1980 challenged the significance ascribed to several of the pilots' historical skillsets such as superb hand-eye coordination required for aggressive stick and rudder maneuvering and perfect eyesight and crack marksmanship required for long range visual detection and destruction of the enemy. Highly automated systems would, proponents argued, simplify the pilot's tasks while increasing his lethality in the air, thereby opening fighter aviation to broader segments of the population. However, these new systems often required new, unique skills which the pilots struggled to identify and develop. Moreover, the challenges that accompanied these technologies were not restricted to individual fighter cockpits but rather extended across the pilots' tactical formations, altering the social norms that had governed the fighter pilot profession since its establishment. In the end, the skills that made a fighter pilot great in 1980 bore little resemblance to those of even thirty years prior, despite the precepts embedded within the myth of the fighter pilot. As such, this history illuminates the rich interaction between human and machine that often accompanies automation in the workplace. It is broadly applicable to other enterprises confronting increased automation, from remotely piloted aviation to Google cars. It should appeal to those interested in the history of technology and automation as well as the general population of military aviation enthusiasts.

Provided by publisher Equality on Trial Katherine Turk, 2016-06. In 1964, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act outlawed workplace sex discrimination, but its practical meaning was uncertain. Equality on Trial examines how a generation of workers and feminists fought to infuse the law with broad notions of sex equality, reshaping workplaces, activist channels, state agencies, and courts along the way.

The Murder of the Middle Class Wayne Allyn Root, 2014-07-14. The great American middle class is dying, and not from natural causes. The Murder of the Middle Class exposes the crime and indicts the conspirators from the Obama administration to their willing accomplices in big business, big media, and big unions, naming names and pointing out their misdeeds. Bestselling author Wayne Allyn Root doesn't just prove the crime and profile the suspects; he provides bold solutions to save American capitalism, the middle class, the GOP, and YOU.
