

- The angle of the sun's rays is smaller further away from the equator. The same amount of sun rays must heat a greater area = lower temperatures.

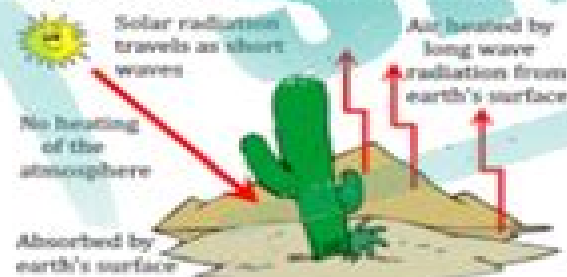

2. DISTANCE FROM THE SEA

Air takes on the properties of the land it is sitting on.

- ✓ Warm sea or land => air on top of the warm surface will be warm.
- ✓ Cold sea or land => air on top of the cold surface will be cold.

What is the reason for a decrease in temperature with an increase in altitude?

- Heat from the sun is called solar radiation.
- Solar radiation travels as short waves through the atmosphere without heating the atmosphere.
- These short waves are absorbed by earth's surface and radiated as long waves that heat the air above.
