Legality Austin Sarat, 2011-09-12 Imagining Legality Where Law Meets Popular Culture is collection of essays on the relationship between law and popular culture that posits in addition to the concepts of law in the books and law in action a third concept of law in the image that is of law as it is perceived by the public through the lens of public media Imagining Legality argues that images of law suggested by television and film are as numerous as they are various and that they give rise to a potent and pervasive imaginative life of the law The media's projections of the legal system remind us not only of the way law lives in our imagination but also of the contingencies of our own legal and social arrangements Contributors to Imagining Legality are less interested in the accuracy of the portrayals of law in film and television than in exploring the conditions of law's representation circulation and consumption in those media In the same way that legal scholars have taken on the disciplinary perspectives of history economics sociology anthropology and psychology in relation to the law these writers bring historical sociological and cultural analysis as well as legal theory to aid in the understanding of law and popular culture

Translating Cain Samantha Joo, 2020-12-10 Unless we recognize the cultural context embedded in the Genesis story of Cain and Abel the significance of Cain's rejection and consequent violence is often lost in translation While many interpreters highlight the theme of sibling rivalry to explain Cain's murderous violence Samantha Joo relates Cain's anger and shame to the social marginalization of Kenites in ancient Israel for whom Cain functions narratively as an ancestor To better understand and experience Cain's emotions in the narrative Joo provides a method for re contextualizing an ancient story in modern contexts Drawing from post colonial theories of Latin America translators Joo focuses on analogies which simulate the moveable event of a story She shows that novels like Fyodor Dostoevsky's Crime and Punishment and Richard Wright's Native Son in which protagonists kill to escape their invisibility capture the event of Cain and Abel Consequently readers can empathize with the anger and shame resulting from the social marginalization of Cain through the alienation of a poor ex university student Raskolnikov and the oppression of a young black man Bigger Thomas

Even before the biblical canon became fixed writers have revisited and reworked its stories The author of Joshua takes the haphazard settlement of Israel recorded in the Book of Judges and retells it as an orderly military conquest The writer of Chronicles expurgates the David cycle in Samuel I and II offering an upright and virtuous king devoid of baser instincts This literary phenomenon is not contained to inner biblical exegesis Once the telling becomes known the retellings begin through the New Testament rabbinic midrash medieval mystery plays medieval and Renaissance poetry nineteenth century novels and contemporary literature writers of the Western world have continued to occupy themselves with the biblical canon However there exists no adequate vocabulary academic or popular religious or secular literary or theological to describe the recurring appearances of canonical figures and motifs in later literature Literary critics bible scholars and book reviewers alike seek recourse in words like adaptation allusion echo imitation and influence to describe what the author for lack of better terms has come to call retellings or recastings Although none of these designations rings false none approaches precision They do not tell us what the author of a novel or poem has done with a biblical figure do not signal how this newly recast figure is different from other recastings of it and do not offer any indication of why these transformations have occurred Sustaining Fictions sets out to redress this problem considering the viability of the vocabularies of literary midrashic and translation theory for speaking about retelling

Intra- and Interlingual Translation in Flux Višnja Jovanović,2023-02-17 This book extends new lines of inquiry on intra and interlingual translation building on Jakobson s classification of translational relations to take into account the full complexity of language and the role of social dimensions in fostering linguistic unity and identity Jovanovi argues that intra and interlingual translation do not form a stable relationship but in fact are both contingent on how languages and their borders are defined Chapters unpack the causes and effects of this instability through the lens of Serbo Croatian literature where the impact of sociopolitical pressure on language over time can be keenly observed Drawing on work from translation studies sociolinguistics close reading distant reading and discourse analysis Jovanovi charts how linguistic fluidity where linguistic borders are challenged at both the macro and the micro level as a result of sociopolitical change in turns shapes literary and cultural circulation In its examination of the intersection of the linguistic and social in translational relations in the Serbo Croatian context the book can offer wider insights into better understanding the literary and translational landscape of analogous sociolinguistic and geographic milieus This volume will be of interest to scholars in literary translation translation theory sociology of translation comparative literature and multilingualism

French in Multilingual Anglophone Africa Michael Akinpelu,Tunde Ajiboye,2025-09-04 Examining the impact of French language in Nigeria this book discusses the prospects of French language use for development as well as its connection to literature and translation. Despite its ambiguous and indistinct official status in the country, French remains the preferred foreign language in Nigeria and academia. Michael Akinpelu and Tunde Ajiboye's French in Multilingual Anglophone Africa: Language, Literature and Translation in Nigeria discusses how the French language is not only taught as a foreign language in Nigerian higher education but is also an important linguistic code for literary creation, translation and interpretation, blending local and international francophone cultures. Part I explores issues related to bilingualism, language resource management and comparison between French and local languages. Part II considers the French language's exploitation in relation to translation and interpretation with particular interests in cultural challenges. Part III provides historical context, tracing the evolution of literary engagement of Nigerian writers' contact with French and evolving perspectives on the language in Nigerian literature from the 1930s to present day. Using case studies, classroom fieldwork and policy analyses, this book shows how French in multilingual Africa is not just a mode of communication but a powerful instrument of socio-economic integration and mobility in a globalized world.

Translation Theory and the Old Testament in Matthew Woojin Chung, 2017-09-04. In Translation Theory and the Old Testament in Matthew, Woojin Chung employs a rigorous method of Skopos theory to examine Matthew's citation technique in his infancy narrative and locates the specific purpose of his use of Scripture. He argues that the complex nature of the formulaic quotations and allusion in Matthew 1:2 can be understood in light of new methodological insights. The way Matthew cites the Old Testament for his communicative purpose is congruent to the approach of a Skopos translator who is motivated by a specific purpose of translation. The theory of interpretation of his use of Scripture therefore can be informed by the theory and method of translation.

The Word John Barton, 2023-05-02. From a distinguished Oxford scholar and the author of A History of the Bible, an examination of how biblical translation works and why it matters. Throughout history, most Jewish and Christian believers have understood scripture not in the languages in which it was first written but rather in their own in translation. In The Word, acclaimed Bible scholar John Barton explores how saints and scholars have negotiated the profound challenges of translating the Bible while remaining faithful to the original. In addition to considering questions of literal versus free translation, literary style, inclusive language and more, Barton draws out scriptural translation's role at critical junctures in religious history. Far from a mere academic exercise, biblical translation has shaped how we answer faith's most enduring questions about the nature of God, the existence of the soul and the possibility of salvation.
