Force XXI Training Program-digital Project, 1999 This report discusses the Army's initial research into converting Force 21 Training Program FXXITP products to meet the increasingly pressing training needs of digital battle staffs. The report describes the activities and outcomes of the U.S. Research Institute for the Behavioral and Social Sciences (ARI) Force 21 Training Program Digital FXXITP D project. The project developed an approach that supports the conversion of existing training products in order to meet new training needs. During the project, the conversion approach was employed to research and enact conventional to digital conversions of selected FXXITP products including the Battle Staff Training System (BSTS) and Combined Arms Operations at Brigade Level Realistically Achieved Through Simulation (COBRAS) vignettes, Brigade Staff Exercise (BSE) and Brigade and Battalion Staff Exercise (BBSE). In addition to the conversion approach and prototype digital training products, the project identified a number of lessons for the continuing development of digital training and the digital force Stinet.

Military Review, 2002      Manuals Combined: U.S. Marine Corps Basic Reconnaissance Course (BRC) References, Over 5,300 total pages. MARINE RECON Reconnaissance units are the commander's eyes and ears on the battlefield. They are task organized as a highly trained six-man team capable of conducting specific missions behind enemy lines. Employed as part of the Marine Air Ground Task Force, reconnaissance teams provide timely information to the supported commander to shape and influence the battlefield. The varying types of missions a Reconnaissance team conducts depends on how deep in the battle space they are operating. Division Reconnaissance units support the close and distant battlespace while Force Reconnaissance units conduct deep reconnaissance in support of a landing force. Common missions include but are not limited to: Plan, coordinate and conduct amphibious ground reconnaissance and surveillance to observe, identify and report enemy activity and collect other information of military significance. Conduct specialized surveying to include underwater reconnaissance and/or demolitions, beach permeability and topography, routes, bridges, structures, urban, rural areas, helicopter landing zones (LZ), parachute drop zones (DZ), aircraft forward operating sites and mechanized reconnaissance missions. When properly task organized, with other forces, equipment or personnel assist in specialized engineer, radio and other special reconnaissance missions. Infiltrate mission areas by necessary means to include surface, subsurface and airborne operations. Conduct Initial Terminal Guidance (ITG) for helicopters, landing craft, parachutists, air delivery and resupply. Designate and engage selected targets with organic weapons and force fires to support battlespace shaping. This includes designation and terminal guidance of precision-guided munitions. Conduct post-strike reconnaissance to determine and report battle damage assessment on a specified target or area. Conduct limited-scale raids and ambushes. Just a SAMPLE of the included publications: BASIC RECONNAISSANCE COURSE PREPARATION GUIDE, RECONNAISSANCE RECON TRAINING AND READINESS T R MANUAL, RECONNAISSANCE REPORTS GUIDE, GROUND RECONNAISSANCE OPERATIONS, GROUND COMBAT OPERATIONS, Supporting Arms Observer, Spotter and Controller, DEEP AIR SUPPORT.

Serena, 2011-09 During the early years of the Iraq War the US Army was unable to translate initial combat success into strategic and political victory Iraq plunged into a complex insurgency and defeating this insurgency required beating highly adaptive foes A competition between the hierarchical and vertically integrated army and networked and horizontally integrated insurgents ensued The latter could quickly adapt and conduct networked operations in a decentralized fashion the former was predisposed to fighting via prescriptive plans under a centralized command and control To achieve success the US Army went through a monumental process of organizational adaptation a process driven by soldiers and leaders that spread throughout the institution and led to revolutionary changes in how the army supported and conducted its operations in Iraq How the army adapted and the implications of this adaptation are the subject of this indispensable study Intended for policymakers defense and military professionals military historians and academics this book offers a solid critique of the army s current capacity to adapt to likely future adversary strategies and provides policy recommendations for retaining lessons learned in Iraq American Military History, Volume II, 2010 From the Publisher This latest edition of an official U S Government military history classic provides an authoritative historical survey of the organization and accomplishments of the United States Army This scholarly yet readable book is designed to inculcate an awareness of our nation s military past and to demonstrate that the study of military history is an essential ingredient in leadership development It is also an essential addition to any personal military history library Perspective, 1992-11

Analysis of Emerging Digital and Back-up Training Requirements Laura A. Ford, Roy C. Campbell, Robert Cobb, 1998

Digitization is the future of the Army. However, along with digitization come training and personnel implications. This report discusses training issues associated with digitization, specifically those that address a need to train and maintain backup along with digital skills. Backup skills are the individual and collective skills required when digital systems are degraded or unavailable. The study focused on the digital M1A2 Abrams Main Battle training program as an exemplar. Lessons learned about digital and backup training requirements should be applied in the M2A3 training program. The study investigated issues that are applicable to a wide range of digital applications and training conditions. The study examined individual and collective tasks that support tank operations and found both digital and backup tasks to be poorly defined, particularly in collective performance. A method for analysis is described, and analytic results are reported. The study also outlines the current state of training armor and infantry soldiers and the impact that increased digitization may have on training pipelines. The study employed a series of expert groups to define issues and formulate recommendations. These groups included users, developers, researchers, and trainers with a wide spectrum of experience and viewpoints. Expert group results are reported and include 15 primary issues and accompanying recommendations. Armor, 2008

Innovation, Transformation, and War James Russell, 2010-12-15

Within a year of President George W. Bush announcing the end of major combat operations in Iraq in May 2003, dozens of attacks by insurgents had claimed hundreds of civilian and military lives. Through 2004 and 2005, accounts from returning veterans presaged an unfolding strategic debacle, potentially made worse by U.S. tactics being focused on extending conventionally oriented military operations rather than on adapting to the insurgency. By 2007, however, a sea change had taken place, and some U.S. units were integrating counterinsurgency tactics and full spectrum operations to great effect. In the main, the government and the media cited three factors for having turned the tide on the battlefield: the promulgation of a new joint counterinsurgency doctrine, the surge in troop numbers, and the appointment of General David Petraeus as senior military commander. James Russell, however, contends that local security had already improved greatly in Anbar and Ninewa between 2005 and 2007 thanks to the innovative actions of brigade and company commanders, evidenced most notably in the turning of tribal leaders against Al Qaeda. In Innovation, Transformation, and War, he goes behind the headlines to reveal, through extensive field research and face-to-face interviews with military and civilian personnel of all ranks, how a group of Army and Marine Corps units successfully innovated in an unprecedented way, from the bottom up as well as from the top down. In the process, they transformed themselves from organizations structured and trained for conventional military operations into ones with a unique array of capabilities for a full spectrum of combat operations. As well as telling an inspiring story, this book will be an invaluable reference for anyone tasked with driving innovation in any kind of complex organization.
