Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10 sedentary, middle-aged men. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The first session was a warm-up, the second was a cardiovascular workout, and the third was a strength training session. The results of the study showed that the men who participated in the program showed significant improvements in their physical fitness. Specifically, their heart rate, blood pressure, and body mass index (BMI) all decreased significantly. Additionally, their muscle strength and endurance improved. The study concluded that a 12-week training program can effectively improve the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged men.
