

The Enhanced GUIDE FOR OCCUPATIONAL EXPLORATION

Descriptions for the 2,000 Most Dangerous Jobs— Compensating More Than 75 Percent of the Workforce

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program on the physical fitness of 12-year-old children. The study was conducted in a school setting. The subjects were 20 children, 10 in the control group and 10 in the experimental group. The experimental group performed the program for 12 weeks. The physical fitness of the children was measured at the beginning and at the end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the experimental group had significantly higher scores than the control group in all physical fitness measures at the end of the 12-week period. The results suggest that a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program can improve the physical fitness of 12-year-old children.

A major challenge for students, Zander explains, is learning to be "flexible and adaptable" with technology and business and organizational requirements.

- Comprehensive, systematic data management
- All data integrated in one-to-one longitudinal investigations
- High inter-rater reliability, generalizability
- enough longitudinal measurements for 2,000 subjects
