Constitutional Change and Constitutionalism in Africa , 2025-06-19 The new generation of African constitutions crafted in the 1990s marked the beginning of a trend that promised a radical transformation of the continent's governance landscape This movement aimed to eliminate the risks of coups and political instability that had plagued Africa since the 1960s by embedding democracy and constitutionalism However the wave of constitutional reforms post 1990s seems to have sparked a contagious fever of making unmaking and remaking constitutions The nature and frequency of these changes threaten to undermine the progress made in entrenching a culture of constitutionalism good governance and respect for the rule of law It is therefore no surprise that there is almost universal agreement that Africa is now facing a profound crisis of democracy and constitutionalism Constitutional Change and Constitutionalism in Africa examines the nature and extent of these changes which have been occurring more frequently and sometimes more arbitrarily than anticipated Among the main questions investigated are the constitution making process and the roles of various internal actors such as the legislature executive and judiciary as well as external actors like the African Union and Regional Economic Communities in the different processes of constitutional change Ultimately the discussions aim to explore how the processes of constitutional change whether inevitable and unavoidable or contrived can be conducted in a manner that does not undermine or threaten the efforts to entrench democracy constitutionalism good governance and respect for the rule of law on the African continent Global education monitoring report, 2019 UNESCO, Global Education Monitoring Report Team, 2019-10-31 No part of the world is currently as much affected by migration and displacement as the Arab States The region accounts for 5% of the global population but 32% of the global population of refugees and 38% of the global population of people internally displaced by conflict Although migration offers opportunities humanitarian crises have slowed down the pace of education development in the region relative to other regions undermining the prospects of this and future generations Executive summary ed
