According to the best authorities the world in which we dwell is a huge opaque reflecting inanimate mass floating in the vast ethereal ocean of infinite space It has the form of an orange being an oblate spheroid curiously flattened at opposite parts for the insertion of two imaginary poles which are supposed to penetrate and unite at the center thus forming an axis on which the mighty orange turns with a regular diurnal revolution The transitions of light and darkness whence proceed the alternations of day and night are produced by this diurnal revolution successively presenting the different parts of the earth to the rays of the sun The latter is according to the best that is to say the latest accounts a luminous or fiery body of a prodigious magnitude from which this world is driven by a centrifugal or repelling power and to which it is drawn by a centripetal or attractive force otherwise called the attraction of gravitation the combination or rather the counteraction of these two opposing impulses producing a circular and annual revolution Hence result the different seasons of the year viz spring summer autumn and winter This I believe to be the most approved modern theory on the subject though there be many philosophers who have entertained very different opinions some too of them entitled to much deference from their great antiquity and illustrious characters Thus it was advanced by some of the ancient sages that the earth was an extended plain supported by vast pillars and by others that it rested on the head of a snake or the back of a huge tortoise but as they did not provide a resting place for either the pillars or the tortoise the whole theory fell to the ground for want of proper foundation

Knickerbocker's History of New York Washington Irving, 2015-10-14 KNICKERBOCKER S HISTORY OF NEW YORK is the book published in December 1809 with which Washington Irving at the age of twenty six first won wide credit and influence Walter Scott wrote to an American friend who sent him the second edition I beg you to accept my best thanks for the uncommon degree of entertainment which I have received from the most excellently jocose History of New York I am sensible that as a stranger to American parties and politics I must lose much of the concealed satire of the piece but I must own that looking at the simple and obvious meaning only I have never read anything so closely resembling the style of Dean Swift as the annals of Diedrich Knickerbocker I have been employed these few evenings in reading them aloud to Mrs S and two ladies who are our guests and our sides have been absolutely sore with laughing I think too there are passages which indicate that the author possesses powers of a different kind and has some touches which remind me much of Sterne Washington Irving was the son of William Irving a sturdy native of the Orkneys allied to the Irvines of Drum among whose kindred was an old historiographer who said to them Some of the foolish write themselves Irving William Irving of Shapinsha in the Orkney Islands was a petty officer on board an armed packet ship in His Majesty s service when he met with his fate at Falmouth in Sarah Sanders whom he married at Falmouth in May 1761 Their first child was buried in England before July 1763 when peace had been concluded and William Irving emigrated to New York with his wife soon to be joined by his wife s parents

which it is drawn by a centripetal or attractive force otherwise called the attraction of gravitation the combination or rather the counteraction of these two opposing impulses producing a circular and annual revolution Hence result the different seasons of the year viz spring summer autumn and winter This I believe to be the most approved modern theory on the subject though there be many philosophers who have entertained very different opinions some too of them entitled to much deference from their great antiquity and illustrious characters Thus it was advanced by some of the ancient sages that the earth was an extended plain supported by vast pillars and by others that it rested on the head of a snake or the back of a huge tortoise but as they did not provide a resting place for either the pillars or the tortoise the whole theory fell to the ground for want of proper foundation
