

Building the JavaScript Library

The first step in building the JavaScript library is to create a new file named `library.js` in the `src` directory. This file will contain the code for the library, which will be used by the application.

Next, we need to define the `Library` class. This class will be responsible for managing the state of the library and providing methods for interacting with it.

class Library { constructor() {
    this.books = [];
    this.currentBook = null;

  addBook(title, author) {
    this.books.push({ title, author });

  removeBook(title, author) {
    this.books = this.books.filter( (book) => !(book.title === title & book.author === author)
    );
  }

  getBook(title, author) { return this.books.find( (book) => book.title === title & book.author === author
    );
  }
}

The `Library` class has a constructor that initializes the `books` array and the `currentBook` property. It also has three methods: `addBook`, `removeBook`, and `getBook`.

The `addBook` method takes the title and author of a book as arguments and adds it to the `books` array. The `removeBook` method takes the title and author of a book as arguments and removes it from the `books` array.

The `getBook` method takes the title and author of a book as arguments and returns the book object from the `books` array. If the book is not found, it returns `null`.

Finally, we need to export the `Library` class from the `library.js` file. This will allow us to use the `Library` class in other files.
