CORN CHRONICLES

THE JOURNEY FROM PLATE TO POOP

How the Digestive System Works

The digestive system is a complex of organs that work together to break down food into nutrients that the body can use. It starts in the mouth, where food is chewed and mixed with saliva. The food then travels down the esophagus to the stomach, where it is broken down into smaller pieces. From the stomach, the food moves into the small intestine, where it is further broken down and nutrients are absorbed. The remaining waste moves into the large intestine, where water is absorbed and the waste is prepared for elimination.

Breaking Down is Hard to Do

While the digestive system is designed to break down food, it can sometimes have trouble. For example, if you eat too much food or eat food that is hard to digest, you may experience indigestion or heartburn. These symptoms are caused by the stomach producing too much acid or the food not being broken down properly. Eating smaller meals and avoiding spicy or fatty foods can help prevent these problems.

Let's Process This

Understanding how the digestive system works can help you make better choices about what you eat. For example, you can choose to eat more fruits and vegetables, which are high in fiber and can help keep your digestive system healthy. You can also avoid eating too much food or eating too quickly, which can lead to indigestion. By taking care of your digestive system, you can keep yourself healthy and happy.
