

Building the JavaScript Library

The first step in building the JavaScript library is to create a new file named `library.js` in the `src` directory. This file will contain the code for the library.

Next, we need to define the `Library` constructor function.

The `Library` constructor function will take a single argument, the `name` of the library.

The `Library` constructor function will create a new object with the following properties:

- `name`: The name of the library.
- `version`: The version of the library.
- `author`: The author of the library.
- `description`: The description of the library.
- `url`: The URL of the library.
- `license`: The license of the library.

Next, we need to define the `Library` prototype object.

The `Library` prototype object will have the following methods:

- `getVersion`: Returns the version of the library.
- `getAuthor`: Returns the author of the library.
- `getDescription`: Returns the description of the library.
- `getUrl`: Returns the URL of the library.
- `getLicense`: Returns the license of the library.

The `Library` prototype object will also have a `constructor` property that points to the `Library` constructor function.

The `Library` prototype object will also have a `prototype` property that points to the `Library` prototype object.

Next, we need to define the `Library` constructor function.

The `Library` constructor function will create a new object with the following properties:

- `name`: The name of the library.
- `version`: The version of the library.
- `author`: The author of the library.
- `description`: The description of the library.
- `url`: The URL of the library.
- `license`: The license of the library.

The `Library` constructor function will also have a `prototype` property that points to the `Library` prototype object.
