

traditional Roman Catholic mass and featured Bible readings, preaching the word of God leading to a doctrine known as Lutheranism.

In his ninety-five theses, Luther presented his main ideas and provided a justification for them. First, he believed that the Roman Catholic Church was materialistic and that it was becoming oppressive to the poor in the society. He gave the example of Pope whose wealth had grown excessively and yet this he earned from the poor. However, the Pope would not fund the construction of the church but the poor had to contribute. His idea was that the church should avoid materialism and focus on the religious teachings. Another idea was that the church did not have any power to forgive or to save the people. He claimed that the people would not be saved by contributions and the indulgences they made. To him, this was like bribing God to forgive them (Bainton 269). The Pope felt that the priest intimidated the sacrament of confession that the church viewed as a channel for forgiveness of sins. Resultantly, the church excommunicated him and he became the protestant reformist.

Luther justified his argument on salvation on faith. He said that Christians can only be saved by God for the faith that they manifest and not the indulgences that they made to the church. He referred to the letter of St. Paul to the Romans and the words that "he who through faith is righteous shall live" to justify his argument on the need for faith in salvation. When he translated his theses, he received great support and formed the protestant community. He also brought the idea of clerical marriage by marrying, an act that was against the doctrines of priesthood in the Catholic Church. This formed a new era when religious leaders had the freedom to marry and have a family (Marble Para. 1-10). His believes and traditions have portrayed him as a religious reformist in the society.

In conclusion, Martin Luther King is religious reformists who led to the emergence of the protestant churches. His theses expressed the idea that the Catholic Church was Theological trend setters after the war were dogmatic or systematic theologians. Whether men of the right like Karl Holl or men of the left like Karl Barth, they wanted to return to Luther's fundamental Reformation theology and to justification through faith alone. In the mid 1920s, however, Barth saw the dangers of Lutheran theocentrism wedded to German nationalism and moved towards a more Reformed Christology and a greater critical distance from Luther. The other six major Weimar era theologians discussed Karl Holl, Friedrich Gogarten, Werner Elert, Paul Althaus, Emanuel Hirsch, and Erich Vogelsang connected their theology to their Luther studies and to their hopes for rebirth of Germany after the humiliation of the Versailles order. To differing degrees, they presented Martin Luther as the German saviour, and all except Karl Holl, who died in 1926, worked out specifically theological reasons for supporting Hitler when he came to power in 1933.
