Love & Theft Eric Lott, 2013-07-10 For over two centuries America has celebrated the same African American culture it attempts to control and repress and nowhere is this phenomenon more apparent than in the strange practice of blackface performance Born of extreme racial and class conflicts the blackface minstrel show appropriated black dialect music and dance at once applauded and lampooned black culture and ironically contributed to a blackening of America Drawing on recent research in cultural studies and social history Eric Lott examines the role of the blackface minstrel show in the political struggles of the years leading up to the Civil War Reading minstrel music lyrics jokes burlesque skits and illustrations in tandem with working class racial ideologies and the sex gender system Love and Theft argues that blackface minstrelsy both embodied and disrupted the racial tendencies of its largely white male working class audiences Underwritten by envy as well as repulsion sympathetic identification as well as fear a dialectic of love and theft the minstrel show continually transgressed the color line even as it enabled the formation of a self consciously white working class Lott exposes minstrelsy as a signifier for multiple breaches the rift between high and low cultures the commodification of the dispossessed by the empowered the attraction mixed with guilt of whites caught in the act of cultural thievery This new edition celebrates the twentieth anniversary of this landmark volume It features a new foreword by renowned critic Greil Marcus that discusses the book s influence on American cultural studies as well as its relationship to Bob Dylan s 2001 album of the same name Love Theft In addition Lott has written a new afterword that extends the study s range to the twenty first century

Refusing to Be Made Whole Anna LaQuawn Hinton, 2025-03-17 In Refusing to Be Made Whole Disability in Black Women's Writing author Anna LaQuawn Hinton examines how contemporary Black women writers present becoming disabled as a traumatic and violent experience of Black womanhood. Nevertheless, Black women embrace disabled Black womanhood by turning to Africanist spiritual understandings of wholeness which view debilitating injury and illness as not only physical but also spiritual, not just an individual problem but a symptom of discord in the community. Black women use these belief systems to reimagine healing in ways that make space for a variety of body/mind/spirits. Hinton maintains that this is not only a major theme in contemporary Black women's writing but that it also shapes the formal elements characteristic of the Black women's literary tradition. Refusing to Be Made Whole analyzes texts published after the civil rights movements of the 1950s and 1960s, focusing particularly on the late 1970s onward when Black women's writing flourished. Through the lens of writings by authors such as Toni Cade Bambara, Gayl Jones, Gloria Naylor, Ntozake Shange, Audre Lorde, Alice Walker, Toni Morrison, Octavia Butler, Sapphire, and Sarah E. Wright, Hinton addresses prominent critical discourses within Black feminist literary studies. Hinton approaches the intersections of Africanist spirituality, race, gender, class, and disability, conversations about representation, community, motherhood, and sexuality through a Black feminist disability studies framework. Refusing to Be Made Whole embraces the complex and multifaceted nature of Black women's writing, arguing that through this collision of race, gender, and spirituality, Black women writers speak healing and wellness into their readers' lives and their own.

The Films of Steven Spielberg Charles L. P. Silet, 2002-10-02 Steven Spielberg has fashioned an enviable career as a writer, producer, and director of American motion pictures, winning Academy Awards for Best Direction (Saving Private Ryan), Schindler's List, and for Best Film (Schindler's List). With David Geffen and Jeffrey Katzenberg, he founded DreamWorks SKG, already one of the most productive and respected studios in Hollywood. Despite Spielberg's notable successes, however, his films have not avoided controversy. The Films of Steven Spielberg provides for the first time a collection of critical writings by professional film critics about the director and his films, bringing together many articles and reviews scattered in often inaccessible specialist publications and professional journals. The opinions vary from complimentary to critical, but they definitely provide a well-rounded view of the films and the director. Twelve of Spielberg's major box office hits, including Jaws, Raiders of the Lost Ark, E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial, The Color Purple, Empire of the Sun, Jurassic Park, Schindler's List, Amistad, Saving Private Ryan, and Close Encounters of the Third Kind, are discussed in essays that vary in complexity, ranging from the heavily theoretical to the more general. This collection of essays, compiled for both film students and professionals in the film industry, attests to the influence of Spielberg and the films that have earned him a significant place in the history of cinema as one of America's most innovative and culturally important filmmakers.

Racechanges Susan Gubar, 2000 When the actor Ted Danson appeared in blackface at a 1993 Friars Club roast he ignited a firestorm of protest that landed him on the front pages of the newspapers rebuked by everyone from talk show host Montel Williams to New York City's then mayor David Dinkins Danson's use of blackface was shocking but was the furious pitch of the response a triumphant indication of how far society has progressed since the days when blackface performers were the toast of vaudeville or was it also an uncomfortable reminder of how deep the chasm still is separating black and white America In Racechanges White Skin Black Face in American Culture Susan Gubar who fundamentally changed the way we think about women's literature as co author of the acclaimed The Madwoman in the Attic turns her attention to the incendiary issue of race Through a far reaching exploration of the long overlooked legacy of minstrelsy cross racial impersonations or racechanges throughout modern American film fiction poetry painting photography and journalism she documents the indebtedness of mainstream artists to African American culture and explores the deeply conflicted psychology of white guilt The fascinating racechanges Gubar discusses include whites posing as blacks and blacks passing for white blackface on white actors in The Jazz Singer Birth of a Nation and other movies as well as on the faces of black stage entertainers African American deployment of racechange imagery during the Harlem Renaissance including the poetry of Anne Spencer the black and white prints of Richard Bruce Nugent and the early work of Zora Neale Hurston white poets and novelists from Vachel Lindsay and Gertrude Stein to John Berryman and William Faulkner writing as if they were black white artists and writers fascinated by hypersexualized stereotypes of black men and nightmares and visions of the racechanged baby Gubar shows that unlike African Americans who often are forced to adopt white masks to gain their rights white people have chosen racial masquerades which range from mockery and mimicry to an evolving emphasis on inter racial mutuality and mutability Drawing on a stunning array of illustrations including paintings film stills computer graphics and even magazine morphings Racechanges sheds new light on the persistent pervasiveness of racism and exciting aesthetic possibilities for lessening the distance between blacks and whites

Writing Revolution Peter J. Bellis, 2010-04-15 In recent years formalist and deconstructive approaches to literary studies have been under attack charged by critics with isolating texts as distinctive aesthetic or linguistic objects separate from their social and historical contexts Historicist and cultural approaches have often responded by simply reversing the picture reducing texts to no more than superstructural effects of historical or ideological forces In Writing Revolution Peter J. Bellis explores the ways in which literature can engage with rather than escape from or obscure social and political issues Bellis argues that a number of nineteenth century American writers including Nathaniel Hawthorne Henry David Thoreau and Walt Whitman saw their texts as spaces where alternative social and cultural possibilities could be suggested and explored All writing in the same historical moment Bellis's subjects were responding to the same cluster of issues the need to redefine American identity after the Revolution the problem of race slavery and the growing industrialization of American society Hawthorne Bellis contends sees the romance as neutral territory where the Imaginary and the Actual the aesthetic and the historical can interpenetrate and address crucial issues of class race and technological modernity Whitman conceives of Leaves of Grass as a transformative democratic space where all forms of meditation both political and literary are swept away Thoreau oscillates between these two approaches Walden like the romance aims to fashion a mediating space between nature and society His abolitionist essays however shift sharply away from both linguistic representation and the political toward an apocalyptic cleansing violence In addition to covering selected works by Hawthorne Whitman and Thoreau Bellis also examines powerful works of social and political critique by Louisa May Alcott and Margaret Fuller With its suggestions for new ways of reading antebellum American writing Writing Revolution breaks through the thickets of contemporary literary discourse and will spark debate in the literary community

Sexuality and the Erotic in the Fiction of Joseph Conrad Jeremy Hawthorn, 2007-03-01 Awarded third place for The Adam Gillon Book Award in Conrad Studies 2009 The book presents a sustained critique of the interlinked and contradictory views that the fiction of Joseph Conrad is largely innocent of any interest in or concern with sexuality and the erotic and that when Conrad does attempt to depict sexual desire or erotic excitement then this results in bad writing Jeremy Hawthorn argues for a revision of the view that Conrad lacks understanding of and interest in sexuality He argues that the comprehensiveness of Conrad's vision does not exclude a concern with the sexual and the erotic and that this concern is not with the sexual and the erotic as separate spheres of human life but as elements dialectically related to those matters public and political that have always been recognized as central to Conrad's fictional achievement The book will open Conrad's fiction to readings enriched by the insights of critics and theorists associated with Gender Studies and Post colonialism
