Wind

What is wind?

Wind is the movement of air from one place to another. It is caused by differences in air pressure. Wind can be felt as a breeze or as a strong gust. Wind can also be seen as leaves rustling or flags waving.

How is wind measured?

Wind is measured using an anemometer. An anemometer is a device that measures the speed and direction of the wind. It is usually mounted on a tall pole. The anemometer has a cup that catches the wind and a vane that points in the direction the wind is blowing. The anemometer sends information to a computer, which records the data.

Why is wind important?

Wind is important for many reasons. It helps to move clouds and rain. It helps to keep the air fresh. Wind can also be used to generate electricity. Wind is a clean and renewable source of energy.

How do we use wind?

We use wind in many ways. We use windmills to generate electricity. We use wind to power boats and airplanes. We use wind to dry clothes and food. Wind is a valuable resource that we should all appreciate.

Wind Speed Scale

1. How fast is the wind blowing? (in km/h)

2. How many leaves are rustling?

3. How many flags are waving?

4. How many branches are moving?

5. How many trees are swaying?

6. How many clouds are moving?

7. How many waves are breaking?

Experiment

Let's do an Experiment

Question: What are the different types of clouds in the sky?

Materials: A clear glass jar, a small amount of water, a small amount of oil, a small amount of food coloring.

Procedure:

- Fill the jar with water.
- Add a small amount of oil to the water.
- Add a small amount of food coloring to the water.
- Shake the jar gently.
- Observe the different layers of the mixture.

Results:

The mixture separates into three distinct layers. The bottom layer is water, the middle layer is oil, and the top layer is food coloring. This demonstrates that oil and food coloring do not mix with water.

Conclusion:

The experiment shows that different substances have different densities. Oil is less dense than water, so it floats on top. Food coloring is more dense than water, so it sinks to the bottom.

Meteorologist for a Day

Objective: To learn about weather and how to forecast it.

Materials: A weather map, a thermometer, a barometer, a wind vane, a rain gauge.

Procedure:

- Observe the weather outside.

- Compare your observations with the forecast.

Results:

The weather was sunny and warm. The temperature was 25°C. The wind was blowing from the south at 10 km/h. The barometer was at 1013 hPa. The rain gauge was empty.

Conclusion:

The forecast was accurate. It predicted a sunny day with a high temperature of 25°C and a low temperature of 15°C. The wind was predicted to be from the south at 10 km/h. The barometer was predicted to be at 1013 hPa. The rain gauge was predicted to be empty.
