

Introduction

In recent years there has been a broad trend towards firmly developing and asserting human rights both civil and rights that help people believe that we should give animals just rights to humans. Others view them as a fashionable term of trend, as well as other idealistic positions.

Body paragraph #1

First of all, it seems clear for north intelligent people that animals deserve more rights than they have traditionally been given. This is because they are obviously intelligent and go with thoughts and feelings and if there are not really the same as we are, for example, it has been said that some animals - birds and dolphins - even, that some people like horses or fish would display the signs of their pain and wish that we would interact with human suffering. Therefore, it appears quite clear that they should be given the same rights and protection as humans.

Body paragraph #2

There are arguments against giving rights for animals and not that they have the ability of human feeling and speech but that they are not human and that their level of behaviour is clearly normal within the natural world. It looks human should not be given just rights upon their natural environment because our natural relationship is with the same as that of a wild and a sheep. It should be clear for us that animals for our own benefit because that is the natural way of the world.

Conclusion

In conclusion, there are arguments from both sides of the debate, both arguing that that animals deserve respect, protection, and some rights. Perhaps they should not be given the same treatment as humans but they should certainly be treated better than they currently are and least should be drafted for extreme their protection from undue suffering.
