Macroeconomics, agriculture, and food security Díaz-Bonilla, Eugenio, 2015-10-27 Why write a book on macroeconomic policies and their links to agriculture and food security in developing countries The food price spikes of the years just prior to 2010 and the economic political and social dislocations they generated refocused the attention of policymakers and development practitioners on the agricultural sector and food security concerns But even without those traumatic events the importance of agriculture for developing countries and for an adequate functioning of the world economy cannot be denied First although declining over time primary agriculture still represents important percentages of developing countries overall domestic production exports and employment If agroindustrial transportation commercial and other related activities are also counted then the economic and social importance of agriculture based sectors increases significantly Furthermore large numbers of the world s poor still live in rural areas and work in agriculture Through the links via production trade employment and prices agricultural production is also crucial for national food security Second it has been shown that agriculture in developing countries has important growth and employment multipliers for the rest of the economy and agriculture seems to have larger positive effects in reducing poverty than growth in other sectors Third agriculture is not only important for individual developing countries but it has global significance considering the large presence of developing countries in world agricultural production and the increasing participation in international trade of those products these three points will be covered in greater detail in Chapter 1

Global Agriculture and the American Farmer Kimberly Ann Elliott, 2017-06-27 The United States is one of the world s largest producers and exporters of a range of agricultural commodities and the largest provider of foreign assistance so U S policies have big effects on global food security and other global public goods linked to agriculture On the positive side of the ledger President Obama created the Feed the Future aid initiative to promote agricultural development in poorer countries as a tool to achieve the global goals of ending hunger and extreme poverty which are mostly rural But that generosity is undercut by U S support for farmers that distorts global markets and ignores negative spillovers for the rest of the world In this book Elliott focuses on three policy areas that are particularly damaging for developing countries traditional agricultural subsidy and trade policies that support the incomes of American farmers at the expense of farmers elsewhere the biofuels mandate which in its current form increases market volatility while doing little if anything to mitigate climate change and weak regulation of antibiotic use in livestock which contributes to the global spread of drug resistant super bugs While noting that broad reforms are needed to fix these problems Elliott also identifies practical steps that U S policymakers could take in the relatively short run to improve farm policies for American taxpayers and consumers as well as for the poor and vulnerable in developing countries The Handbook of Global Agricultural Markets L. Nijs,2014-06-23 This book is a one stop reference for practitioners and academics in finance business and economics providing a holistic reference to the international agriculture business It takes a multidisciplinary approach looking at the issues opportunities and investable themes in the global agricultural space combining research and practical tools

Agriculture, food security, and nutrition in Malawi: Leveraging the links Aberman, Noora-Lisa, Meerman, Janice, Benson, Todd, 2018-02-22 Although the Malawian food supply is shaped largely by trends in smallholder food crop production Malawi's decades long focus on improving smallholder productivity has only moderately improved food security and nutrition outcomes Country statistics indicate an estimated 36.7 percent of rural Malawian households failed to access sufficient calories between 2010 and 2011 During the same period 47 percent of children under the age of five years were estimated to be stunted in their growth These indicators imply that some Malawian diets are lacking in terms of quantity total calories consumed and most are lacking in terms of quality sufficient calories derived from nutrient dense foods such as meat fish eggs dairy legumes fruits and vegetables Good nutrition requires both enough total calories quantity and enough vitamins and minerals per calorie quality How can Malawi better leverage its smallholder agriculture sector to improve nutrition This report provides a series of primary and secondary data analyses that examine different aspects of this question

Employment and Inclusive Development Rizwanul Islam, Iyanatul Islam, 2015-02-11 Issues relating to employment and labour have once again come to the fore of global policy debates in the wake of the widespread unemployment that has accompanied the current financial crisis In the developing world there is a growing realization that productive employment promotion and social protection have to be at the core of inclusive growth and development This book supports the view that employment is a cross cutting issue shaped by macroeconomic and microeconomic policy interventions and provides a capacious framework to analyse the complexity of this global debate It covers a wide range of issues that have received insufficient attention in the discourse of development and labour economics These include the impact of macroeconomic policies on employment labour rights the development of human capabilities and employability youth employment the benefits and costs of labour market flexibility and the importance of social protection for all This important book aims at filling this gap by revisiting old debates and reconnecting them to the contemporary context combining analyses with relevant empirical evidence It will appeal to a diverse readership of academic institutions and think tanks international organizations bilateral donors working on development issues and policy makers in developing countries

Greening the Common Agricultural Policy Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee, 2012 The European Commission proposes that 30% of direct payments made to farmers under the Common Agricultural Policy CAP would be conditional on compliance with three new greening measures While supporting the Commission's desire to improve the environment the EFRA Committee rejects the approach proposed Instead it calls for the EU to set high level objectives for the CAP that provide for flexibility to apply the right measures for local conditions through decentralising environmental protection under the CAP to Member States This report highlights the huge benefit that UK agri environment schemes have brought to biodiversity food production and the countryside The Committee also urged Defra to ensure that the UK's tenant farmers should not be excluded from these schemes The Committee concludes that Defra must ensure the balance of funding between mandatory and voluntary aspects of the CAP should not leave UK farmers at a competitive disadvantage relative to their counterparts in the rest of Europe MPs also warn that measures proposed by the Commission would be even more complex than the current system adding costly bureaucracy and generating more errors in the system Likewise the committee concludes that the Commission's crop diversification measure would in the UK have perverse consequences that are far less environmentally beneficial than crop rotation Of the three greening measures offered the Commission's proposal for Ecological Focus Areas EFA has the potential to deliver the greatest environmental benefit However the lack of definitions within the proposals make it difficult to assess what if any such benefits would actually be delivered

The Oxford Handbook of Africa and Economics Célestin Monga, Justin Yifu Lin, 2015-07-02 A popular myth about the travails of Africa holds that the continent's long history of poor economic performance reflects the inability of its leaders and policymakers to fulfill the long list of preconditions to be met before sustained growth can be achieved These conditions are said to vary from the necessary quantity and quality of physical and human capital to the appropriate institutions and business environments While intellectually charming and often elegantly formulated that conventional wisdom is actually contradicted by historical evidence and common sense It also suggests a form of intellectual mimicry that posits a unique path to prosperity for all countries regardless of their level of development and economic structure In fact the argument underlining that reasoning is tautological and the policy prescriptions derived from it are fatally teleological low income countries are by definition those where such ingredients are missing None of today's high income countries started its growth process with the required and complete list of growth ingredients Unless one truly believes that the continent of Africa and most developing countries are ruled predominantly if not exclusively by plutocrats with a high propensity for sadomasochism the conventional view must be re examined debated and questioned This volume the second of the Oxford Handbook of Africa and Economics reassesses the economic policies and practices observed across the continent since independence It offers a collection of analyses by some of the leading economists and development thinkers of our time and reflects a wide range of perspectives and viewpoints Africa's emergence as a potential economic powerhouse in the years and decades ahead amply justifies the scope and ambition of the book Protecting Forest and Marine Biodiversity Ed Couzens, Alexander Paterson, Sophie Riley, Yanti

Fristikawati, 2017-11-24 This timely book contributes to discussions on the best legal practices to use to promote conservation protection and sustainable use of biological diversity in forest and marine areas The breadth of issues explored across these two themes is immense and the book identifies both key differences and striking commonalities between them

The Political Economy of the 2014-2020 Common Agricultural Policy Johan F.M. Swinnen, 2015-07-30 After five years of debates consultations and negotiations the European institutions reached an agreement in 2013 on the Common Agricultural Policy CAP for the 2014-2020 period The outcome has major implications for the EU's budget and farmers' incomes but also for Europe's environment its contribution to global climate change and to food security in the EU and in the world It was decided to spend more than 400 billion during the rest of the decade on the CAP The official claims are that the new CAP will take better account of society's expectations and lead to far-reaching changes by making subsidies fairer and greener and making the CAP more efficient It is also asserted that the CAP will play a key part in achieving the overall objective of promoting smart sustainable and inclusive growth However there is significant scepticism about these claims and disappointment with the outcome of the decision making the first in which the European Parliament was involved under the co-decision procedure In contrast to earlier reforms where more substantive changes were made to the CAP the factors that induced the policy discussions in 2008-13 and those that influenced the decision making did not reinforce each other On the contrary they sometimes counteracted one another yielding an imperfect storm as it were resulting in more status quo and fewer changes This book discusses the outcome of the decision making and the factors that influenced the policy choices and decisions It brings together contributions from leading academics from various disciplines and policy makers and key participants in the process from the European Commission and the European Parliament

The Oxford Handbook of the South African Economy Arkebe Oqubay, Fiona Tregenna, Imraan Valodia, 2021-11-18 While sharing some characteristics with other middle income countries South Africa is a country with a unique economic history and distinctive economic features It is a regional economic powerhouse that plays a significant role not only in southern Africa and in the continent but also as a member of BRICS However there has been a lack of structural transformation and weak economic growth and South Africa faces the profound triple challenges of poverty inequality and unemployment Any meaningful debate about economic policies to address these challenges needs to be informed by a deep understanding of historical developments robust empirical evidence and rigorous analysis of South Africa's complex economic landscape This volume seeks to provide a wide ranging set of original detailed and state of the art analytical perspectives that contribute to scientific knowledge as well as to well informed and productive discourse on the South African economy While concentrating on the more recent economic issues facing South Africa the handbook also provides historical and political context It offers an in depth examination of strategic issues in the country s key economic sectors and brings together diverse analytical perspectives

The Rise and Decline and Rise of China MISTRA MISTRA,2015-05-10 The Rise and Decline and Rise of China Searching for an Organising Philosophy represents a new and promising approach to Africa China relations What is most impressive is that it is an encounter between African and Chinese thought but this encounter is not just a set of stale comparisons of philosophical beliefs This study places the concepts and attitudes in both China and Africa in their socio political contexts in an attempt to provide a sophisticated sensitive and usable history This attempt yields dividends especially for the primary audience of Africans as it gives a way of learning from the vast history of Chinese experience without reducing African experience to insignificance or irrelevance as has happened so often in dialogues between Africa and the West This book will be of interest to anyone from within Africa interested in engaging with China as a complex and nuanced place a place of challenge creativity and opportunity OECD Development Co-operation Peer Reviews: Ireland 2014 OECD,2014-12-02 This peer review of Ireland reviews its development policies and programmes It assesses not just the performance of its development co operation agency but also policy and implementation
