Davies,2008-06-06 In December 2005 I changed my mind 1 Up until that time I had put my name on one case history in 400 publications 2 I changed my mind and realized that reading case histories could be a good learning exercise I had previously considered useful case histories to be essentially live case demonstrations Indeed I had persuaded years of endocrine clinical fellows that writing case histories was not something to be encouraged But the cheese moved Live case history presentations became too complex for easy digestibility The many investigations and vast literature review required more contemplation than a live presentation had required in the past And writing these exercises as a formal case history allowed the complex literature to be better understood Furthermore as our evidence base has grown the idiosyncratic approach so common in live case demonstrations of the past has become totally unacceptable The written or prepared case has become the ideal forum for demonstrating how to manage a medical case to the greatest benefit of the patient Indeed written case histories are clearly the very best means of showing medical care guidelines in real practice and of revealing their advantages and disadvantages 3 That does not mean we should no longer give live case demonstrations Demonstrating a supportive and knowledgeable patient can be a magnificent teaching tool For many years I have presented endocrinology cases to our first year medical students and for many years these physicians later told me how much they enjoyed them and that they remember them well So clearly both formats of delivery remain effective The
